

Kingston's Importance Being Diminished

Postal Jobs Shifting from City

By SID LEAVITT

Freeman staff

KINGSTON — A new high-speed postal center opening this month in Wappingers Falls will shift three dozen workers out of the Kingston Post Office, along with the city's responsibilities as a sectional postal center, officials confirmed Thursday.

The shift isn't expected to begin until 1977, probably May or June. Because of their union contract, the local employees will have little choice in the matter.

The move was labeled "unfortunate" and "insensitive" by the Chamber of Commerce of Ulster County's executive director, Len Cane, although he didn't expect a 35-mile job shift would mean a residential shift for most of the affected employees.

The most serious consequence, Cane said, would be the "psychological factor" affecting the community and any new business or industry it were trying to attract.

Although sectional responsibility for mail whose ZIP codes begin with the digits 1-2-4 to 1-2-7 is now handled chiefly by the Poughkeepsie Post Office, Kingston has been a so-called "associate" office in that function.

With the shift, Kingston's sectional duties will essentially stop, said Robert J. Corcoran, information officer in the Poughkeepsie sectional headquarters.

Affected Kingston employees, about a fifth of the local work force, have "been made aware" of the plan through their national union, Corcoran said, although they haven't yet been officially ordered to Wappingers Falls.

Reports that the postal union has hired an attorney to fight the reorganization couldn't be confirmed.

The Wappingers Falls center, a former Grandway supermarket building renovated under a $700,000 construction contract, will have new Burroughs mail handling equipment designed to make sectional sorting and transfer much faster, Corcoran said.

A majority of the 200 to 300 workers at the new center will be transferred from the Poughkeepsie operation, but the shift for them will be less than 10 miles.

"Sure, I would be unhappy, too. This is not a pleasant thing," said Robert A. Smith, a Poughkeepsie postal executive who has been Kingston's acting postmaster since Oscar V. Newkirk died two months ago. "But then again, to attempt to make our operation more efficient and businesslike,

The main post office in Kingston, soon to lose three dozen workers.

we have to make these changes occasionally."

While the workers have been notified about the change, the U.S. Postal Service hasn't volunteered much public information. Smith said the Poughkeepsie office is "preparing a press release that will give you the whole story."

Efforts Continuing To End Safety Strike

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (UPI) — Mayor Jack Hunter said a new pay package proposal for safety force members will be slightly larger than one rejected by police and firemen Thursday. About 550 safety force members were to vote on the proposal at a meeting today.

The officers are seeking a 6 per cent raise the first year of the new contract and an 8 per cent raise the second year. The city had offered 6 per cent both years. Six of eight unions representing 1,000 city employees, including 283 policemen and 260 firemen, went on strike Monday over the pay dispute, leaving the city with only 34 police officers and 8 firemen still on duty.

Rizzo Wins Fight Against Recall Vote

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Pennsylvania Supreme Court ruled Thursday that Philadelphia Mayor Frank L. Rizzo does not have to face a recall vote in the Nov. 2 election.

The organizer of the Citizens Committee to Recall Rizzo, an organization that collected more than 211,000 names in an attempt to oust the mayor, said the decision was a "terrible disappointment," but added, "We hope those signatures did send a message against the abuse of power."

Congress Rejects Ford Jobs Bill Veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress Thursday overturned President Ford's veto of the $56.6 billion appropriations bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. It was their 12th override of Ford's 59 vetoes in 27 tries.

The bill, Ford said, was $4 billion more than he requested and therefore inflationary. Congressional advocates responded that shortchanging vital social programs now would result in added costs in the long run.

Kissinger Talks Plainly to UN

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger addressed the U.N. General Assembly Thursday and reviewed U.S. foreign policy ranging from the Middle East to Korea to southern Africa. He used some tough language.

In one instance, Kissinger, evidently responding to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's speech on Tuesday describing U.S. diplomatic activities in southern Africa as "political grimickry," said, "The United States believes that the future of mankind requires coexistence with the Soviet Union, but tired slogans cannot obscure the necessity for a more constructive relationship."

The first legal bet in Ulster County is posted.

All Bets Are On

OTB Gates Open

TOWN OF ULSTER — Area horse players began putting their dollars down Thursday at Ulster County's first OTB parlor opened, handling $1,500 in the first hour. Other parlors were scheduled to open today in Wappingers Falls and Monday in New Paltz.

Opening, after a postponement, with little publicity, the new Mammoth Mall parlor had a moderate crowd of about a dozen bettors waiting when the OTB gates were officially sprung at 2 p.m. Business remained about the same for the first hour.

"If we do anything more than $1,000 for the first day, I'll be happy," said Arthur Weinfeld, director of operations for the Catskill Regional Off Track Betting Corp., a five-month-old organization which eventually will cover 10 upstate counties.

Earlier in the day, Poughkeepsie's first OTB parlor opened, handling $1,500 in the first hour. Other parlors were scheduled to open today in Wappingers Falls and Monday in New Paltz.

Ulster County's first official OTB bettor was John J. McGinnis, 41, of Kingston, whose inaugural pick was Mrs. Herman to win in the fourth race at Belmont.

McGinnis, a United Parcel Service employee whose union is out on strike, bet only $2 — "the same way I started."

Asked about the wisdom of Ulster and Dutchess County Legislatures finally approving OTB this year, three years after the system got started in

New York City, McGinnis said, "I'm glad they put it in. It saves me from running down to New York."

He expected business at the new Albany Avenue parlor would be "a lot at first out of curiosity. Then it'll boil down to the people who play the races anyway."

The new parlor, brightly painted but somewhat narrow and austere, features a half dozen round tables on which visitors can check the wall charts and handicap the horses, then five tellers booths through which bets can be made and payoffs picked up.

Bets are registered electronically with the correct track, where a central computer then prints out a betting slip by remote control at the OTB parlor, by (See OTB, page 5.)

Local Assets Often Overlooked, Says Exec

Local Plant Is Thriving

Posner, hearing testimony.

KINGSTON — Optimism was generally scarce at yesterday's labor committee hearing, but a few speakers saw a bright future for industrial development in the local area — corporate executive Thomas Nau among them.

"Our company started in Ulster County about four years ago and last year we relocated in Kingston with about 40 employees," Nau told the Committee. "Today we have 160 people on the payroll."

Nau, the vice-president and treasurer of FX System's Inc., says the success of the local electronics firm is based on the fact that the company took advantage of some often-overlooked assets in the local area.

"Old buildings are an asset in Ulster County. We found one that was solid, spacious and cheap. We applied for and received Job Development Authority funding and we renovated the building. Then we got On the Job Training funds and we got our staff together. We found a base of people in this area who want to work. Sure things are bad, high taxes and such, but if we create a 'we've got people who want to work' atmosphere, the industry will come."

The hearing, according to Seymour Posner, D-76th Dist., who chairs the New York State Assembly Standing Committee on Labor, was held for the purpose of finding out why industry is leaving New York State and what the legislature can do about it.

The speakers, who for the most part were union leaders, spoke of a lack of construction, the high cost of energy and competition between New York, Canada and other states in the Northeast.

Joseph Roglieri, president of the 19,600 member Building and Construction Trades Council, said that about two thirds of his members are out of work and by January many of them will have exhausted their unemployment benefits. "There is work waiting to be done," said Roglieri. "Nuclear plants in Lloyd and Cementon are waiting to be built. The old City Hall in Kingston — renovate it or tear it down. The arterial. Let's get going."

Trades council Vice President John Mulvin also spoke of nuclear power plants and the fact that construction workers in the South are making money building them.

"People in Tennessee and the Carolinas are living next to nuclear plants. What makes people in New York State think they're so holy that they can't live next to them?" Mulvin asked the committee.

Student Suffrage Is Issue Again

NEW PALTZ — Students and election board officials in this college town are having their usual October squabble about voter registration requirements, but the disagreement lacks its former punch.

An organizer of recent voter registration drives at the State University College at New Paltz is claiming that about 98 of the 1,000 persons who filled in register-by-mail applications had their cards rejected because of an erroneous belief by the Kingston board that their permanent home is not New Paltz.

Two board commissioners reply that they are simply following state election laws which clearly define residency as a place where a person "maintains a fixed personal or permanent home to which he always intends to return."

They also say that the less than 10 per cent rejection is just part of the general scanning process all mail registration is subjected to and not all of those send-backs were due to residency problems.

"We sat down one whole morning and talked to Ralph Brock, one of the organizers, and explained to him what was missing or wrong with each card," said Commissioner Edwin F. Callahan.

"We're certainly not discriminating against these people, we've registered hundreds in similar situations, we just want them to register in the proper place...where their homes are — just like my children do."

Roger Greene, a spokesman for the student group who sponsored the campus registration maintains that the board refuses to see young people who live in New Paltz 12 months a year as residents and claims that the board is using employment in the area as a requisite for registration.

"It seems as though if you can prove you have a job in New Paltz, they'll register you," he said this morning.

BROADWAY STRIPPER

Well-protected in rubber gear, a worker of Western Waterproofing Inc. of Albany strips old paint from the exterior of the former municipal auditorium on Kingston's central Broadway. The $111,000 job is part of a plan to renovate the structure into a multi-purpose neighborhood center with federal community development funds.

Hurley Couple Sues FBI; Claims Home Was Bugged

NEW YORK — The question of whether the FBI placed an electronic listening device on the Hurley home of Judith Clavir, which she shared with an alleged Weatherman-connected radical, Stewart Albright, will go before the U. S. District Court, Southern District of New York.

At issue is whether the FBI was authorized by the Justice Department to place the device in the home, whether it was placed after the FBI said it halted home break-ins in 1973.

Albright, who Weatherman connections, is an employee of famed attorney William Kunstler, working as a legal assistant in this area.

He and Miss Clavir brought the civil lawsuit after they discovered last December that a radio transmitter had been placed on the underside of their car.

John Russell, spokesman for the Justice Department told the Freeman today that a government attorney disclosed the existence of an electronic device but refused to comment further because the case is in litigation.

Albright claimed today that another device was placed on the car in 1975 and alleges that the FBI has't told the whole story to the Justice Department.

'Assassin' Owes Him $1,000

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI) — The craftsman was not what he purported to be, did not render the services contracted for and so Dr. John Werner wants his money back.

Werner, a radiologist, pleaded no contest in August to a charge of soliciting the murder of his wife, Carmelita, 38. He was fined $2,000 and put on three years probation.

Werner was arrested after he gave an undercover policeman, posing as an assassin, $1,000 as a down payment to carry out the killing.

Werner filed suit Friday, demanding his $1,000 back.

IBM Suit Ruling

BOSTON (UPI) — The 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has voided a lower court order that International Business Machines Corp. pay $11.4 million to a Rhode Island jewelry firm for breach of contract.

The appeals court Thursday ordered a new trial in a suit brought by Catamore Enterprises, Inc., of East Providence, which had sought $26 million in damages. A six-member federal district court jury in Providence found in favor of Catamore in a 56-day trial which ended in July, 1975.

Catamore was ordered in the same finding to pay $68,453 in back computer rental to IBM, one of the largest corporations in the world.

Catamore had charged IBM with fraud, breach of contract, breach of warranty and negligence. It was believed to be the largest recovery by an IBM customer.

Catamore attorneys contended IBM had a corporate policy of selling a customer a small computer, making the company change its inventory numbering system so only a computer could read it, then trying to sell a bigger computer.

"We are pleased that the court has granted a new trial. This confirms our belief that the original jury verdict was contrary to evidence and law," said an IBM spokesman.

Auto Insurance Action

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Sen. John Dunne, chairman of the Senate Insurance Committee has called on the state Insurance Department to temporarily suspend automobile insurance increases which have not yet been put into effect.

The Garden City Republican said Thursday the department had "failed to meet the clear legislative mandate that it take the insurance company's investment income into consideration in approving the requested rates."

Dunne, in a statement released by his office, urged the department to "review the legality" of all such increases approved during the last several months and to suspend increases not yet implemented "pending that determination."

He was critical of "an altogether too close and informal relationship" between the insurance companies and the department and said he would ask the legislature to set "more specific standards for reviewing rate increase applications."

In addition, he said the department should be given more personnel "for more thorough review of rate increase applications."

Hunting Ban In North Woods

By UPI

Heavy rains soaked the Middle Atlantic Coast and California early today but drought brought a hunting ban to the tinder-dry woodlands of northern Minnesota.

Minnesota officials banned hunting Thursday in the drought-ridden northern two-thirds of the state, where fire regulations previously had been stiffened.

Minnesota Commissioner of Natural Resources Robert Herbst, who had eased hunting restrictions in the drought area a week ago, issued an outright ban on hunting as dry conditions persisted. Open burning had been banned for several weeks.

"Our priority concern must be saving human lives and property, in addition to protecting our natural heritage," said Gov. Wendell Anderson.

Herbst said when hunting was reopened there had been rain and predictions for more but it failed to materialize. State parks, campgrounds, forest roads and public access sites were closed and outdoor smoking banned.

Minnesota officials also said the water level in the Mississippi River above the Coon Rapids Dam may have to be lowered significantly to maintain an adequate flow of water to the Minneapolis Water Department.

The river has been low along most of its length because of dry weather in the middle and upper Mississippi Valley.

Thunderstorms continued into the early morning today over the Middle Atlantic Coast and some rain extended inland to the Central Appalachians. Other showers dampened New

In Fall's Golden Days It's a Great Sound

"Going to the river" is a way of life for any body who lives along the Dutchess County shore. The splash of a stone in the wind-rippled Hudson is autumn music to their ears, equalled only by that sound of spring, the sharp crack of a ball on a bat. Ushering in October near the Rhinecliff train station, Wayne Nelms (l) and Stephen Riker plunk rocks at floating cans. And, in fall's golden days, the clink of a direct hit drowns out parents' voices calling and calling to ears that hear not.

Panel Program on Oct. 6

Senior Citizen Seminar Set for Ellenville

ELLENVILLE— One of a continuing series of senior citizen seminars conducted by the Ulster County Office for the Aging will be held at the Ellenville Reformed Church, 188 Canal Street, Wednesday, Oct. 6, beginning at 1:30 p.m. UCOFA director Antoinette I. Tennant will serve as moderator for the 90-minute panel program. Panelists and their topics are:

Jack Reynolds, director, Real Property Tax Service Agency, "Property Rights and Taxes."
Sue Campbell, supervisor of adult services, Ulster County Department of Social Services, "Protective Services for the Elderly."
Michael Kavanagh, first assistant district attorney, "Harassment and the Elderly."

Louise Breitung, home economist, Ulster County Cooperative Extension, "Educating the Consumer."
William Cloonan, attorney, "Wills and Estates."
Panelists will be welcomed and introduced by Ulster County Legislator George M. Barthel, D-1st Dist., a member of the legislature's Program for the Aging Committee.

Program arrangements were through the cooperation of Jack Sorken, president of the Ellenville Jewish Senior Citizens and chairman of the UCOFA advisory council, Irene Ingebreten, president of the Ellenville Golden Age Seniors and Albert J. Cawein, Ulster County public relations director.
The seminars are funded by the New York State Office for the Aging.

Previous seminars were held in Saugerties and New Paltz. Future seminars, with as many of the same panelists as possible, are slated for the Hurley Reformed Church on Tuesday, Oct. 19, and for the Old Dutch Church in Kingston on Thursday, Oct. 28.

"I've got the names of all the volunteers," said

KINGSTON— Kingston School Board President Fred Hofbauer says he now has enough volunteers to form two citizens advisory committees to aid the board in district policy.

At the board's regular meeting earlier this month Hofbauer announced that he was seeking input from the community in the areas of vandalism and discipline and the budget.

He said he was being unbiased as possible in his selection of committee members and avoiding the temptation of appointing only friends and other people with ideas similar to his own.
The Vandalism and Discipline Committee will be chaired by board member Doris Mulvin and will consist of 15 other persons. Board member W. James Penrose will head the Citizen's Budget and Advisory Committee. In addition to Penrose the committee will have 12 members.

When asked if he anticipated the formation of additional committees Hofbauer said he could not say at this time.

"We will if we have additional need."

The committee members will be announced at the board's next regular meeting on October 7.

HISTORIC STROLL

Kingston-Hurley Walk to Mark 1777 Flight

HURLEY — A walk from Kingston to Hurley Saturday, Oct. 16, will commemorate the flight of Kingston residents when their city was burned by the British in 1777.

Walkers will assemble at the Senate House grounds at 10:30 a.m. and walk out Old Route 209 to Hurley, where an afternoon of activities has been planned.

At 12:30 p.m. the Town of Hurley will receive its official Bicentennial Community Flag and scroll from Harry Rigby Jr., a member of the New York State Bicentennial Commission, in a brief ceremony in front of the library and town hall on Main Street.

Members of the Hurley Town Board, led by Supervisor Raymond "Jake" Crowell, will reenact General George Washington's visit to Hurley at 2:30 p.m. The Hudson Valley Philharmonic's brass quintet will play a concert at the Hurley Elementary School at 3 p.m. The Hamlet Puppet Theater will present Punch and Judy performances at the school at 11:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. The Hurley Fire Company will hold an open house throughout the day, beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Along Main Street, the Ulster County Art Association will have an outdoor exhibit during the afternoon, and some of the old colonial homes will have floral arrangements on their doors provided by the Garden Club of Kingston. There will be continuous showings of Bicentennial movies and slides in the school.

A rest stop has been arranged for walkers at John A. Coleman High School, about midway along the route, where soft drinks will be available. Participants are encouraged to join the walk in colonial costume and to use a horse and carriage or wagon if available. Bicyclists and joggers are also welcome to take part, and the less athletically inclined may come by automobile. Motorists, however, are advised to either use the Route 209 bypass or Lucas Avenue and Zandhoeck Road.

All events are open to the public without charge.

School Board Has Vols To Assist on the Policy

KINGSTON— Kingston School Board President Fred Hofbauer says he now has enough volunteers to form two citizens advisory committees to aid the board in district policy.

At the board's regular meeting earlier this month Hofbauer announced that he was seeking input from the community in the areas of vandalism and discipline and the budget.

"I've got the names of all the volunteers," said

Hofbauer, "and as far as I can tell it's a good cross section of the community."

He said he was being unbiased as possible in his selection of committee members and avoiding the temptation of appointing only friends and other people with ideas similar to his own.

The Vandalism and Discipline Committee will be chaired by board member Doris Mulvin and will consist of 15 other persons. Board member W. James Penrose will head the Citizen's Budget and Advisory Committee. In addition to Penrose the committee will have 12 members.

When asked if he anticipated the formation of additional committees Hofbauer said he could not say at this time.

"We will if we have additional need."

The committee members will be announced at the board's next regular meeting on October 7.

ACTION Plans Recruiting

KINGSTON— ACTION, an organization made up of America's citizen volunteer groups, will sponsor a two-day recruitment drive at the Kingston Holiday Inn on October 13 and 14.

Formed in 1971, ACTION brought together the Peace Corps, VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America), UYA (University Year for ACTION), RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program), SCORE (Service Corps of Retired Executives) and ACE (Active Corps of Executives).

Aging Office Lists Series

KINGSTON — A series of paralegal training seminars for senior citizens will be held in the Ulster County Office Building in Kingston during October.

Antoinette I. Tennant, director of the sponsoring Ulster County Office for the Aging, said that Katherine Lazar, a legal graduate, would serve as instructor and that Ulster County Legislator Alice Tipp, chairwoman of the Program for the Aging Committee, would also be hand.

Dates and topics for the various seminars are:

Monday, Oct. 4, old age survivor benefits and disability insurance.

Tuesday, Oct. 12, income for the elderly, supplementary security income and institutionalization.

Wednesday, Oct. 13, Medicare, Medicaid, other supplementary insurance.

Monday Oct. 18, Social Security advocacy, food programs.

Wednesday, Oct. 20, taxes, housing, rentals, contracts.

Wednesday, Oct. 27, utilities and consumer protection.

All sessions will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. with a lunch break from noon until 1 p.m. All sessions will be held in the legislative chambers on the fifth floor except for the Oct. 13 and Oct. 27 sessions, which will be held in the surrogate chambers on the third floor.

The program is sponsored and supported by the New York State Office for the Aging.

No Gardiner Word On a Town Hall

GARDINER — The Gardiner Town Board and about 100 town residents recently viewed plans for a new town hall, but the board made no commitment toward building it.

The New Paltz architectural firm of Liebman and Hurwitz presented plans for a 4,250-square foot structure that would cost an estimated $125,000. The hall, which would sit on a two-acre site in Majestic Memorial Park, would include offices for the supervisor, town clerk, town justice, police, assessor and building inspector. Also included is a 2,000-square foot multi-purpose meeting room and a fireproof room for record storage.

The exterior walls would be of vertical redwood siding and interior walls would be non-load bearing to allow for possible relocation. One suggestion at the meeting was that they be built on runners for easy movement.

Supervisor John Bonagura suggested a 20-year loan to pay for construction, heating and maintenance, which he estimated would cost $15,000 annually. This would amount to $12 a year on the average tax bill, assuming an average assessed property value of $2,000.

The town currently pays the fire department $750 a year rental on its meeting room and spends more than $1,000 a year on heat and electricity in the Tuthilltown hall. Bonagura said the new building was needed for centralization of records and services.

Al Soutar of the planning board asked that the estimated $30 per square foot be checked with local contractors, saying "It's important we be firm in the area of costs."

Would Be Kingston's Third, Again

FCC Approval Sought for Radio Station

KINGSTON— Leighton Nickerson, president of the newly formed Ulster Broadcast Corporation, says it could be as soon as 90 days before Kingston has a third radio station, again.

Nickerson, a Middletown area resident, has filed an application with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) for the license of now defunct WKOT.

"We're considering a middle of the road format," said Nickerson. "No rock, no Bach, just beautiful music. Barring complications, we expect to be on the air in 90 to 120 days."

Complications could come in the form of a challenge from another area radio station.

Such was the case earlier this year when Eagle Broadcasting applied for the license and was challenged by WKNY.

According to Eagle Broadcasting spokesman Frank Adams of Kingston, the challenge would have been too costly to fight and much too time consuming. Nickerson says he is prepared to fight, but he might not have to.

"I haven't seen the application, but I don't expect to challenge it," said Joseph Shuler, station manager of WKNY.

When asked why the Eagle application was challenged, Shuler said it was "a legal matter. Very complicated."

One source close to the situation said that the WKNY challenge was a very simple matter, "we just didn't want another station vying for the local advertising dollar. This town's too small to support three stations."

Walter Maxwell, spokesman for WGHQ/WBPM said he doesn't plan to present a challenge either.

"I wish them luck," said Maxwell, "but I'm not optimistic that they can make a go of it. It's been a marginal existence for KOT since 1959."

In February, 1975 Town and Country Broadcasting, the former owners of the license, declared bankruptcy. Nickerson says he certain Ulster Broadcasting can avoid that eventuality.

"Prior to filing for the license we had to survey the community to determine what the needs are. We interviewed about 40 community leaders and we spoke with about 80 other people picked randomly from the phone book. We have a good idea of what people want from a local station."

According to Nickerson, the most frequently mentioned problem was the local employment situation.

"We already have one program that is designed to help the unemployment problem. It's called Job Bank and it's a series of mini-programs that will run throughout the day.

NP Village Planners OK Townhouse Project

NEW PALTZ — The New Paltz Village Planning Board has approved a 118-unit townhouse project off Henry W. Dubois Drive.

Construction will be done by the developers, Nat Mack and Malcolm Brill, in two phases. The first half must be completed before building permits are issued for the second. Building Inspector Dominick Covello said the plan was designed to insure the developers are keeping the promises they made during their presentation to the planning board.

The designs by Architect Morton Marcus show two kinds of a unit, one 20 by 32 feet selling for $35,990 and the other, 20 by 36 feet, selling for $37,990. Each will have an additional 10 feet of land for a front yard.

FHA financing is anticipated for the project, which will feature solar heating units as optional features. Mack noted that sewer lines will run on the boundaries of this property, making easements from adjoining landowners unnecessary.

Village officials said the water supply and the sewerage treatment plant are adequate to handle the increased loads from the project.

Anthony Costa, president of Inter-County Savings Bank, outlined for planners a plan to build three additional drive-in lanes at the Main Street location. The new lanes, which will cost about $100,000, will eliminate more than a dozen parking places which will be replaced by tearing down the building at 22 Main Street and using the space for parking.

Before giving unanimous approval, board members expressed some reservations, asking why the building at 16 Main Street could not be torn down instead since it is in poor condition. Costa said either would serve the bank's purpose but the asking price for 16 Main Street was $85,000 higher than 22 Main Street.

Plans include a walk-up window for pedestrians so they will not have to stand in line with autos, and Costa said the additional lanes would help ease traffic problems.

Viking 'Bake' Discouraging

Life on Mars Doubtful

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A key Viking experiment has failed to find any trace of organic compounds in the soil of Mars, sharply reducing the possibility that life ever existed on the red planet.

Scientists stress the test was only the first of several, and the conclusion is not yet definite, but concede that most of them now see the possibility of finding Martian micro-organisms as dwindling.

Organic compounds, principally organic carbon and hydrogen, are essential to life on Earth and may be needed to support development of life of any kind.

"The preponderance of scientific thought at the moment is that what we're seeing can be explained by chemistry," not biology, said Dr. B. Gentry Lee.

Viking 2, perched on Mars thousands of miles north of its dormant sister ship, Viking 1, "cooked" a sample of soil in a gas chromatograph mass spectrometer, which determines the molecular makeup of a sample by analysing the gasses given off under high heat.

"We have not detected organic materials," Dr. Klaus Biemann, head of the molecular analysis team, said Thursday.

"But I should point out again this was only the first 200 degree Centigrade test," and there are three more to be conducted at hotter temperatures, he said.

Higher temperatures may release more complex compounds undetected in the first test, conducted at 200 degrees Centigrade — 392 degrees Fahrenheit — about the temperature used in an ordinary home cooking oven. It was followed Thursday by a bake of 350 degrees Centigrade (662 Fahrenheit), with results to be announced today, and there will be two at 900 (938 Fahrenheit).

"After all the tests in this series are done, after that we will look under the rocks," Biemann said, referring to a plan to get a more promising soil sample.

Scientists theorize that the eons-long bombardment of the Martian surface by the sun's rays — which penetrate the thin atmosphere of Mars more easily than Earth's heavier shield — may have bleached out some elements from soil in the open, but the elements would remain in soil sheltered by a rock.

Engineers are programming Viking 2 to push aside a rock to obtain a "sheltered" soil sample and will repeat the tests on that.

Congress Overturns Veto On Appropriations Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the 12th time in 27 tries, Congress has overturned a President Ford veto. This one was a $56.6 billion appropriations bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare, and there were votes to spare.

The bill, which Ford said was $4 billion more than he requested and therefore inflationary, became law Thursday over the President's objections immediately after the vote. Ford has vetoed 59 bills since taking office two years ago.

Another confrontation was avoided when Ford announced later in the day that he will sign two priority jobs bills — one establishing a $3.7 billion public works jobs program and the second continuing for another year a public service jobs program that will provide 260,000 jobs.

The Labor-HEW appropriation is one of the biggest to come before Congress. Ford's veto message called it "a perfect example of the triumph of election-year politics over fiscal restraint and responsibility to the hard-pressed American taxpayer."

Congressional advocates responded that the bill funds programs affecting the lives and welfare of every American and that shortchanging vital social programs now would result in added costs in the long run.

Republicans joined Democrats in overturning the Labor-HEW veto by substantial margins in both chambers. The House's 312-93 vote was 42 more than needed, while the Senate's 67-15 vote was 12 more than the two-thirds required to overturn a presidential veto.

Democratic vice presidential nominee Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., was present to vote for the override. His Republican counterpart Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., was absent.

Two provisions in the legislation helped attract support for an override. One prohibits the use of federal funds to finance abortions for indigent women except to save the life of the mother, while the second exempts farms with 10 or fewer workers from Occupational Safety and Health Act coverage.

Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., said he was confident the anti-abortion language will be found discriminatory and overturned by the courts.

U.N. Speech Favors Coexistence, But Hits Tired Slogans

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — It was tough language for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

For an hour, he addressed the U.N. General Assembly in a review of U.S. foreign policy that stretched from the Middle East to Korea to southern Africa.

Much of it was directed at the Soviet Union, although Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was not in the hall to hear it.

"The United States believes that the future of mankind requires coexistence with the Soviet Union, but tired slogans cannot obscure the necessity for a more constructive relationship," Kissinger said. "There can be no selective detente."

He appeared to be responding to Gromyko's U.N. speech on Tuesday that described the U.S. diplomatic activities in southern Africa as "political gimmickry."

"We have noted crude attempts to distort the purposes of diplomacy and to impede hopeful progress toward peaceful solutions," Kissinger said. "These efforts only foster tensions."

"There may be some countries who see a chance for advantage in fueling the flames of war and racial hatred. But they are not motivated by concern for the peoples of Africa, or for peace."

Kissinger also was noticeably impatient with Third World countries, accusing them of fragmenting the United Nations and of making unreasonable demands of the richer nations in the question of deep-sea bed mining.

Responding to the speech, one nonaligned delegate, E.L.F. de Seneviratne, of Sri Lanka, and Italian Ambassador Pierro Vinci, both called it "one of the best speeches Kissinger ever gave."

Jamil Baroudy of Saudi Arabia said it was "a good and well-balanced speech but words are not sufficient. It will depend on the political will to realize them."

There was no hesitancy at the U.S. delegation. As Kissinger returned to his seat, he was warmly embraced by his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kissinger.

Other highlights: — Kissinger said the United States was prepared to meet with North Korea in a conference on the future of Korea, but not without the participation of South Korea.

— He called for the early convening of a Geneva conference on the Middle East. Apparently signaling an end to his personal style of step-by-step diplomacy, Kissinger said, "The negotiations of the past three years have now brought us to a point where comprehensive solutions seem possible."

— On nuclear nonproliferation, Kissinger said President Ford will soon unveil a three-point program to strengthen international controls for the sale and reprocessing of nuclear fuels.

— On international terrorism, Kissinger called on the United Nations to adopt a West German plan that terrorists, who take hostages, be tried in the country where they are seized, or extradited.

Police Beat

New Paltz Coed Is Rape Victim

NEW PALTZ—A New Paltz coed was reportedly raped on campus Tuesday night near her LeFever Hall dormitory at State University College at New Paltz. Accosted outside the building, the 20-year-old girl was dragged into nearby bushes and raped. Police report she remained there until her assailant left and then ran to her dorm and notified authorities.

According to a campus spokesman, no one saw the attack but someone did report seeing the young woman flee into the building.

The unnamed student was taken to the campus infirmary for treatment.

The incident was the first on-campus rape in more than a year.

A rape-crisis center operates at New Paltz, encouraging students who have been assaulted or raped to seek counseling.

Assault on Thruway

A New York City woman whose car became disabled on the New York Thruway near Plattekill, was the victim of an alleged assault and attempted rape about 10 p.m. Thursday night.

Police report that a car driven by an unknown negro male stopped in front of the car she had pulled off the road and turned off his car lights. The man, whom she thought was going to assist her with the car, approached her, made sexual advances and tried to lead her to his car.

When she resisted, he reportedly beat her about the face and upper torso and fled the scene.

The woman was hospitalized for treatment of her injuries. Highland State Police said.

Try, Try Again

A Saugerties man who was arrested earlier this year for burglarizing a Saugerties home, was arrested today for allegedly trying to re-enter the same house at 3 this morning. James Kiernan of 2291 Highway Lane, West Saugerties, was arrested by Saugerties Police and charged with criminal trespass.

Arraigned before Justice David Van Benschoten, he entered a plea of guilty and will be sentenced Nov. 2.

City Arrests

Kingston City Police arrested Paul Atkinson of 124 West Chestnut St., Thursday for the theft of beer from the Convenient Food Store on Broadway.

Paltz Central School Tax Rate Lower, But

NEW PALTZ—The New Paltz Central School District, which must raise $2,916,030 in local taxes for the 1976-77 school year, will pay at a rate of $208.01 per thousand of assessed valuation, down from last year's $215.18.

Frank Hamilton, the district's business manager, cautioned against any across-the-board generalizations, however, noting that more than 1,000 persons had been reassessed during the past year.

The tax rate in the Town of Gardiner, on the increase for the past five years, went up again. Gardiner residents in the New Paltz school district face a $421.66 rate, up from $369.77.

Irish Bag a Trawler

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI)—Irish naval authorities escorted a giant Soviet trawler into Cork harbor today and temporarily threw its captain into jail, climaxing a tense sea confrontation in which armed Irish troops boarded the ship.

An army spokesman said the trawler will be handed over to Irish police to face charges of fishing illegally inside the Irish Republic's 12-mile territorial limit.

The tough Irish reaction to the alleged poaching was an indication of the government's determination to preserve the nation's rich fishing grounds for native fishermen.

"There will be no nonsense — no matter how big they come," an official said. Skipper Nikolai Shinkaruk of the 2,500-ton trawler Belomorje made a brief court appearance on charges of illegal fishing and was ordered held in custody until another hearing later in the day.

The court action ended a 24-hour drama at sea in which armed Irish troops boarded the Soviet ship after the skipper defied an order from the tiny Irish fishery protection vessel, Grainne, to sail to Cork harbor on the southeastern coast of

He was released in his own custody pending a court appearance today.

Carol Comerford, also known as Carol Krum of Glennerie Boulevard, Saugerties was arrested by city police Thursday charged with issuance of a bad check. Bail was set at $250 pending a court appearance today.

Police also arrested Bobby L. Washington of 86 Abel St., today on a warrant charging him with issuance of a bad check.

Church Stoves Stolen

Two gas stoves used for heating Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church in Ruby were stolen from the church sanctuary during the past week.

Pipes were reportedly severed and church workers found large amounts of gas leaking from the pipes.

Town of Ulster Police and Ruby Fire Department report that one spark would have exploded the 129-year-old house of worship.

The break-in was discovered by church members who regularly clean the church.

A rummage sale is being conducted today at the church at the corner of Main and Sheehan Streets today until 5 p.m. in order to raise funds to replace the stoves.

Saugerties Accident

A 40-year-old New York City man, who lost control of his car when it rounded a curve, went off the right shoulder and cut down a utility pole, at 5:45 a.m. today, was taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance.

Stanley H. Benner, Jr., 33 Green St., suffered severe bleeding of the face, Saugerties Police said.

The accident occurred near the intersection of West Saugerties Road and Blue Mountain Road.

Kingston Man Injured

A Kingston man was taken to Benedictine Hospital early today suffering from lacerations to the head, bruises and cuts sustained at 3:45 a.m. in a one car accident on Route 32 near the Ulster-Saugerties town line.

John J. Filor of Lucas Avenue was arrested for driving while intoxicated. Hurley State Police report that Filor was driving on Main Street in East Kingston, entering the intersection of Route 32, when his car went out of control, hit guard rails and traveled across Route 32 to the other side of the road.

POSTAL

The Wappingers Falls center was scheduled to open today for manual operations. The high-speed equipment will be installed and running by the end of the month, Corcoran said.

The office of Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman, R-26th Dist., told the Free-man Thursday it had been assured by John Littner, a Washington postal service executive, that Kingston "wouldn't be affected" by the Wappingers Falls operation.

Gilman is a member of the House Post Office Committee.

U.S. Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R-25th Dist., is "opposed" and "upset" at the reorganization, "but there's very little Congress can do," a spokesman said.

By approving the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970, making the U.S. Post Office a quasi-public corporation, "Congress voted itself out of having a meaningful voice in the operation of the postal service," said John D. Barry, administrative assistant to Fish.

Emphasizing machines at the expense of human workers is an "erroneous" move that Congress only recently has begun to counteract by such measures as a 1975 law prohibiting the closing of any post office with more than 35 postal boxes, Barry said.

Indianapolis First In War on Swine Flu

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Responsibility for the first shot in the battle against swine flu — the nation's first mass immunization program — has fallen on Indianapolis by default.

And the target of that first shot is Indianapolis Mayor William Hudnut.

Indianapolis became the first city to have a mass inoculation program when two other communities postponed plans to begin their programs today — the first day the vaccine can be used under a federal law providing insurance in the event of complications arising from the vaccine.

The setting for the Indianapolis program had a carnival atmosphere — with shots being administered in a huge white tent in Monument Circle, where a health fair was being held.

Dr. James E. Bowes, chief of the Bureau of Health Services at the Marion County Health Dept., flew to Cincinnati to pick up 60,000 doses of vaccine prepared by Merrell-National Drug Co. of Cincinnati.

The vaccine was paid for by the federal government and are free to the public. Shots were being given today and Saturday.

"Next week, we will be sending teams into high priority neighborhoods, such as housing for the elderly and to sites for lunch programs for the elderly," Bowes said Thursday.

The elderly and those who have chronic illnesses of the heart, lungs or liver should be especially urged to get the shots because they run a greater risk of death from flu, he said. The shots are safe for pregnant women.

THE NEW YORK STATE SOCIAL SERVICES PLAN under Title XX of the Federal Social Security Act

for October 1, 1976 through September 30, 1977

In January of 1975, Congress enacted a law consolidating the social services provisions of the Social Security Act under a new section, Title XX.

Title XX requires each state to develop and publish annually a comprehensive plan for providing services such as day care, foster care, homemaker and housekeeper/chores and family planning.

States are allowed to select and define the services they will provide; the law requires, however, that services be directed toward the goals of self-support, self-sufficiency, preventing or remedying neglect of children and adults and preserving or reuniting families through protective services, preventing or reducing inappropriate institutional care by providing community-based and home-based care, or securing referral

FUNDING: In 1976/77, services will be financed by a Federal allocation to the State of $214.2 million, matched by $36.2 million in State funds and $35.2 million in local funds. In addition to the required matching funds, the State and its localities will continue to provide substantial funds for services without Federal Assistance.

SERVICES: Social Services will be provided to approximately 1.3 million New Yorkers many of whom are already receiving these or similar services under the current Title XX Plan. Under the Plan, the State's 56 local social services districts are authorized to provide the following services:

- Adoption Services
- Day Care Services for Children
- Preventive Services
- Educational Services
- Employment Services
- Family Planning Services
- Foster Care Services for Adults
- Information and Referral Services
- Protective Services for Children
- Protective Services for Adults
- Protective Services for Children
- Social Adjustment Services
- Housekeeper/Chore Services
- Foster Care Services for Children
- Health Related Services
- Home Management Services
- Homemaker Services
- Housekeeping/Chore Services
- Housing Improvement Services
- Social Group Services for Senior Citizens
- Transportation Services
- Unmarried Parents Services

Only those services marked with an asterisk (*) must be made available in every district in accordance with the requirements of State and Federal law. In addition, Adult Welfare Education Services will be provided in twenty districts pursuant to a contract between the State Department of Social Services and the State Education Department. Social Adjustment Services and Employment Services will be provided to children under the care and supervision of the State Division for Youth pursuant to a contract between the State Department of Social Services and the State Division for Youth.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE: Among the New Yorkers who can qualify for services under Title XX are: • Aged, blind and disabled persons who are receiving or are eligible for Supplemental Security Income. • All recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children as Home Relief recipients but not applying for this aid. • Persons whose incomes fall within the limits established by the Plan. The State has established maximum income eligibility limits for all services expressed in terms of percentages of the State's median annual income ($15,169 for a family of four). These limits vary by family size and higher limits for larger families.

For example, for a family of four, the State maximum limit for most of the services above is 62% of the median gross income, or $9,405 per year. For adoption and foster care for children, the maximum eligibility limit is 80% or $12,135 for a family of four. The maximum limits for day care for children are 90% for a two-person family ($9,283) and 80% for all other family sizes. For social group services for senior citizens, the maximum eligibility limit is 115% of the median ($9,071 for individuals and $11,862 for couples). Information and referral services and protective services for children and adults are to be made available without regard to income.

For a number of services, local social services districts have been allowed to set lower eligibility limits than these State maximum limits. Each local district component of the State plan contains local eligibility limits.

In the City of New York, day care services for children will be available at higher income levels than the State maximums, pursuant to an agreement between the City and the State. Further information is contained in the State Plan.

CHANGES IN THE PLAN: Changes in the Final Plan, which are being reviewed by the State Department of Social Services, include:

- Addition of Adoption Services as a mandated service in accordance with new State Law.
- The Statewide definition of family in accordance with new Federal regulations.
- At the suggestion of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare: Description of the 50% Rule under the section on "Eligibility for Public Assistance," a summary of the State Administration Plan, a summary of the use of volunteers in the local districts, description of Title XX service program coordination with other human service programs and funding sources, description of utilization of services, description of the Division of Services' responsibility for conducting evaluations, the purpose and scope of evaluation, and the significant reporting activities.
- A change in Table A to reflect expenditures made through the State Division for Youth for social adjustment and employment services.
- A change in the format of all service definitions which deleted the "districts providing" section since this information is contained in each local district's Appendix C which is now added to the Final Plan.
- Minor changes were made to clarify definitions of Adoption, Employment, Family Planning, Health Related, Housekeeper/Chore, Social Adjustment, and Unmarried Parents.
- In addition, the definition of Day Care was expanded to include regulatory material on Day Care which limits circumstances under which day care is available.
- A change in "Fee for Services" and Table 9 which now includes provision for persons in New York City with children enrolled in day-care school group day care at 25% of the full fee.
- A statistical summary of State and Local Plans which affects adjustments made by local districts in their final plans.
- Changes in eligibility levels including an increase in the yearly Gross Income Equivalent Level for SSI to reflect increases in SSI State Supplemental levels and an increase in the Chemung County "eligible for" ADC and HR levels to reflect an increase in the Chemung County rent schedule.
- Changes in tables setting forth local eligibility levels, estimated expenditures and numbers of recipients to reflect adjustments made by local districts in their final plans.
- Addition of a chart for each local district which provides detailed information on the services available in the geographic area and, where appropriate, local eligibility level tables.

OTB Offices Open

Starting today, Ulster County residents can bet on the horses without going to a track. Off-Track Betting offices opened this morning at Mammoth Mall near Kingston and in New Paltz.

The opening of these betting centers ends once and for all the dispute among betting fans and anti-gambling church groups and moralists over whether the state should use gambling as a way to raise money. The outcome, it seems in retrospect, was a foregone conclusion. The anti-OTB petition drive started by Harry Thayer, our local moral watchdog, died aborning this summer and not even enough signatures to put the OTB resolution to referendum could be gathered.

The establishment of OTB was supported by many who personally dislike the idea of gambling but who were glad to let bettors volunteer to contribute toward the cost of running state and county government.

We don't know whether fears are justified that some compulsive gamblers will wind up spending their infants' milk money on the horses, or whether the government sanctioning of this particular "something for nothing" game (or nothing-for-something game, as some would have it) will serve to introduce more of the innocent to this pastime.

We hope, however, that government-run OTB will at least lessen the temptations to patronize underworld gambling operations and to bet on amateur and professional sports, a habit that's bound to lead to the "fixing" of games and other forms of corruption.

Ordination Coverage Inaccurate

Dear Editor:

Rob Borsellino's coverage of Bishop George McLain (Sept. 23) was partially inaccurate. When I went to school, the basics of good newspaper reporting were accuracy in writing down what you hear and see.

The only time "toilet" was mentioned, was kiddingly referring to the newspaper reporter-photographer from "People" magazine who was doing a story on the Bishop. He took so many pictures, even following him into the john.

Rob also forgot to mention that an atheist, people of the Jewish, Catholic and Protestant faith were all ordained that night.

As far as the complaint of the press coverage, it was not the amount of coverage, but the accuracy in which they wrote down what they saw and heard.

Again, we see this happening!

I do not own any property. I was a former tax assessor and know the inequities in the assessment structure.

Reservoir Takeover A Swindle?

Dear Editor:

It is possible that the takeover of the City of New York's operation of the Gilboa reservoir and the tunnel to Shandaken where the opening is called The Portal could be just another gigantic swindle with the state bureaucrats cooperating with the New York City bureaucrats.

This New York State Power Authority want to build another electric power generating facility at Gilboa, but the Gilboa reservoir is so full of mud and silt that the water is now almost useless to use running through the planned turbines so the whole reservoir will have to be dredged out with upstate New York picking up the bill, which will amount to millions of dollars.

Irates Hit Phone Delays

Dear Editor:

For the past several months the New York Telephone Company has failed to respond to consumer requests for information relevant to case No.27028 concerning requests for information relevant to the exchanges of Phoenicia, Fleischmanns, Shokan, Woodstock and Saugerties. They have failed to take the necessary steps to correct the serious complaints of subscribers of these exchanges which have been brought to their attention since 1969. At the Sept. 20 meeting, the parties concerned discussed in detail 14 points of information requested on telephone surveys, plans, costs, revenue, rates, etc.

We were astonished at the claim of the Telephone Company that it would take from three to six months to gather data on this basic and most vital aspects of the case, namely cost estimates to provide EAS. That this could not be provided for the minimum demands without going into the entire aspect of EAS for all of Ulster County is even more incredible. It seems that this corporate giant with all its sophisticated computerized accounting equipment cannot break down its revenue figures per exchange. Rates are not set according to costs for each exchange, customer calling volume between toll routes are not kept up to date, etc.

The PSC staff present at the meeting approve these accounting procedures of the Telephone Company in spite of the fact that they are supposed to be the watchdog of the public's interest. However, when the Telephone Company requests a rate increase, it has no difficulty presenting all necessary financial and technical information to back up its demand.

There is no question that there is a great inequality at present between the Northern Ulster County exchanges that do not have EAS and those that do; that the priority requests of toll-free service between the two Shandaken exchanges, for toll-free calling from Shokan, Woodstock and Saugerties to their adjacent exchanges can be rapidly implemented by the Telephone Company within their present guidelines and without extensive equipment changes and the rate structure for these areas at present is more than adequate to provide these services. It is further evident that the Telephone Company and the PSC have been aware of these complaints for many years and were remiss in not making any attempt heretofore to correct them.

The Irate Consumers refuse to accept the stalling tactics of the company evidently designed to delay any formal decision of the PSC for as long as possible. We therefore ask the Chairman of the Public Service Commission to submit its plans and proposals promptly to enable the commission to reach a favorable decision without undue delay. We also call upon the community, which has responded magnificently in the past, to redouble its public expression of displeasure with the tactics of the New York Telephone Company.

Persecuted Shall Be Rewarded

Dear Editor:

If my husband and pastor had been found dead between Jan. 26 and Feb. 13, 1976, there would not have been any question as to his innocence. People who have known him would have readily been present at his wake and/or funeral. They would have spoken swelling words of love and admiration.

BUT BECAUSE THE LORD WOULD NOT HAVE HAD IT HAPPEN THAT WAY — because the hitch-hiker who held the gun on him and who relieved him of all the money he had on his person had mercy on him and spared my husband's and pastor's life, TODAY I find myself here making this statement.

Though incredible to the ears, I yet was able to believe the details of his abduction at gunpoint.

NEVERTHELESS: "We are troubled on every side, yet NOT DISTRESSED! We are perplexed, but NOT IN DESPAIR! Persecuted, but NOT FORSAKEN. Cast down, but NOT DESTROYED." (Corinthians 4: 8 and 9)

FOR: "BLESSED are they which are persecuted for righteousness sake; for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven. BLESSED are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely for my sake. REJOICE AND BE EXCEEDING GLAD: FOR GREAT IS YOUR REWARD IN HEAVEN." (St. Matthew 5: 10-12)

I am very, very grateful for the prayers made in his behalf.

Yours by the grace of god,

Ford: Cheap Date; Sure Vote

WASHINGTON - At the debate the other night Frank Reynolds, the panelist from the Almost Broadcasting Company, got in more good licks on Ford than did Carter. Reynolds betrayed indignant smother when he, not the minister from the First Church of the Georgia Peanut, brought up the contrast of pardon for Nixon but not for war resisters.

Perhaps Rev. Goober should learn rhetoric as well as forgiveness from his divine Master. If He took it into His head to criticize Jerry Ford in a debate or a Playboy interview, He wouldn't accuse him of lacking some abstruse virtue like compassion. He would be concrete and specific. He might have said, President Ford has compassion for Richard Nixon who suffered enough but the draft resisters haven't. President Ford has compassion for the petty speculations of a Clarence Kelley, the lethargic incompetent who admits his subordinates lie to him and concedes he doesn't know what's coming off in his own organization. But what of the victims of the murder plots, bombings, burglaries and lesser crimes that the FBI has been accused of taking part in? Compassion without justice, like faith without works, is dead.

The Person in the New Testament wasn't the kind of whimper who'd leave it to Frank Reynolds to bring up Jerry Ford's long-time colleague, Sen. Hugh Scott, and the question of dirty Gulf Oil money. Not that anybody could fairly expect the raisin-eyed Mr. Ford to emulate his opponent, who has now gotten past confessing the sins he has committed and is 'fessing up about the ones he has only been tempted by. Nevertheless a little confession from Jerry wouldn't hurt the soul of the electorate.

What about that picture of him brandishing a golf club in front of Disney World? Betty's in the picture and so is the lobbyist from the steel company who picked up the tab. Pure dinge. This free-loading Ford, the moocher President, passing his years listening to the ice in the highballs tinkle with his expense-account crassbags jocko-boyfriends. It's not illegal, it's not immoral, it's just demeaning, always being a little slow to reach for the bill, always being taken care of, not a bribe taker, just a cheap date and a sure vote. Free-loader Fordie, that absence of pride his partisans speak of comes from years of sating other men's food, sleeping in other men's beds and drinking other men's whiskey.

The humility which derives from letting other men pay for your golfing weekends probably can't be counted as one of the Christian virtues. But the Democratic Doctor of Divinity couldn't say any of these things. That's a way to get crucified, not elected. If you're wooing the voters, you can't tell them U.S. Steel has kidnapped the Moocher, all-expenses-paid, to Disney World and kept him there. And that's where the lack of compassion derives. Jerry isn't mean, he's narrow. If one of the lobbyists whom he chooses to socialize with died the heart-attack death every businessman fears, Jerry Ford, cadging drinks aside, would be genuinely saddened. The death or bad luck to members of country clubs with which he isn't even affiliated makes the raisin eyes blink and water with compassion.

But you mustn't say those things about a President. Even if you don't intend any disrespect to the office, it's taken that way. So the Reverend is at a great disadvantage. If he comes on too strong, the imbecile vote will say he doesn't love his country. Ford can stand in front of the cameras and misquote the current governor of Georgia's opinion of how Carter ran the state, but Carter risks being accused of bad manners if he brings up the West Point Scandals or the HEW Medicaid Frauds or the HUD-FHA thefts of the public purse. Ford is trying to run the government with Richard Nixon's third team, the guys Haldeman and Ehrlichman had for bench warmers. There aren't any fewer scandals under Ford than there were under Nixon. They're just not as interesting. Nixon worked and struggled to raise the level of efficiency in government. Ford lacks the energy or the attention span.

According to one survey, the Poor Peanut suffered a 2 percent switch in voter sentiment against him after he told Playboy readers he occasionally does check out the chicks. If our national namby-pamby quotient is that high, how can Carter bring up a disturbing topic like swine flu and stick it to free-loader Fordie for panicking and risking the public health with this disastrous inoculation program to show us once again he's presidential.

But Carter hasn't done anything to help himself overcome the built-in advantage Ford has. He's let the media intimidate and bully him into granting interviews and access he never should have. From now until November, the Baptist Peanut had best tell every reporter who comes around to shove off, and he should say it in language a lot more pungent than he used with Playboy.

Familiarity breeds contempt and never more so than with journalists.

Otherwise, it's time to bring Nixon back as a reform candidate. We may have to watch him on his taxes, but he was smart enough to stay away from the press and he certainly knows more about running the government than the Presidential Panhandler he stuck us with.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

A Whole Mess of Candidates

All the nuts are not on Carter's farm. They are spread all over this great country. Some of the saner ones are running for president. In fact, the Federal Elections Commission has certified 123 candidates.

Forget Ford and Carter and McCarthy and Madox and Stassen for a moment. Consider Sam Silverstein of New York. His platform states that he is a candidate "who promises nothing and can deliver on that promise." Sam wants to take all Congressmen off salary and put them on a straight commission.

He favors no-fault suicide insurance. He has no antidote to being mugged in New York, so Mr. Silverstein suggests that, as you are being mugged, smile a little bit and "try not to make any ethnic slurs." If the mugger goes for your wallet, Sam says, "stick a finger down your throat and throw up on your money."

Tom Passavant of Playboy, who researched some of the unsung heroes, claims that Sam Silverstein isn't Sam Silverstein's name. Perhaps. But he has a good quote from what's-his-name: "If I'm elected, I promise to resign."

We have a nude candidate, Eddie Collins of Sycamore, Illinois; he and his campaign aides dropped their pants on the Fourth of July. Eddie went to the can awhile for streaking. In court he was about to get off lightly when he dropped his trousers in front of the judge.

He was the only prisoner whose belt wasn't taken away. Collins is noted around Sycamore for reading poetry in the buff. He does it in Juicy John's hood.

Eddie is a bit high on nudity because he is convinced it will save our natural resources. He thinks if we don't have clothes, we can't hunger for money because we will have no place to stuff it.

Every ten-thousandth person remembers Lar Daly. He has run for president seven times and, if he lives, will go zero for eight. Lar warns America that China must be destroyed now, after "a fair warning to surrender... And the same goes for Cuba." This thinking has never won Daly the laundry vote, but he keeps trying.

In Texas, the Reverend Johnnie Mae Hackworth, a maiden of 71, would bring prophecies to the Oval Office. "I'm running," she says, "because the Lord told me to." God could not have been on speaking terms with Johnnie Mae in 1946 when she was beaten in a race for Congress by Lyndon Johnson.

And there is no reason to believe He was speaking to Lyndon either. Twenty years ago she prophesied that the Lord would destroy President Eisenhower. She told him so in a letter. Ike, who was never known as a laugher, had her arrested for threatening his life.

A dozen years ago, she felt another dark prophecy coming on, and wrote the bad news to Lyndon Johnson. He too was anti-yuk and the cops bagged Johnnie Mae again. Now she has a safe prediction: "I will be the 39th president." They can't even arrest Gerald Ford for that.

Paul Trent of Altus, Oklahoma, is an ultra-conservative. He is running for president on a platform called How to Break the National Treasury, or, How to Make a Zillion Dollars Without Paying Taxes.

The way to achieve this is to become an ordained minister, form a church, and hit the parish for a zillion. Paul is candid: "I don't work; I don't earn money; I don't accept campaign contributions." He says he is a minister.

This year, some unenlightened candidates are focusing on abortions. Not Paul Trent. He homes in on sex. "I like broads," he says. "I want to turn women onto politics." This seems like a contradiction in terms, because he should first turn all of them onto Paul.

Cecilia M. Pizzo of Louisiana is a candidate. "I have this bag of voodoo on the magnolia tree out in my backyard and I use it on the crooked politicians." Where was Cecilia when we needed her?

She tried to nullify the Louisiana Purchase and was stunned to learn that the statute of limitations had run out 167 years ago. If she is elected, Cecilia promises to "investigate President Ford to find out if he is a member of the Bilderbergers."

Ernest Whitford of San Pedro snorts, "The state of the Union can be summed up in one word: constipation. For 5,000 years the world has been torn up by constipated rich people," says Whitford, who proposes more bran in our diet.

His slogan is: "I want to wipe out constipation in the U.S." These, my friend, are just a few of the brilliant minds who want to take over.

Tax Forms Flood The IRS

WASHINGTON — The federal establishment is so inundated with government forms that the bureaucrats simply can't keep up with all the paperwork. The loss in paper alone is staggering. But additional billions are swept out with the waste paper.

It costs the taxpayers at least $2 billion a year, for example, because the Internal Revenue Service is too swamped with paperwork to cross-check tax returns with income reporting forms.

Like most government agencies, the IRS issues forms right and left. But what happens to all the forms that the harassed citizens are required to fill out? Many of them, according to an unreleased congressional report, are "routinely destroyed by IRS Without examination."

Every year, half a billion income reporting forms flood into IRS offices. Most are those familiar W-2 forms that list the wages earned by employees. But the annual deluge also includes forms 1087 and 1099, which are used to report income from dividends, interest, rents and royalties.

By comparing these forms with income tax returns, the IRS can identify tax cheaters. Every tax chiseler who is caught saves the money of the honest taxpayers.

Yet the House Monetary Affairs subcommittee, headed by Rep. Ben Rosenthal, D-N.Y., has found that the IRS routinely ignores the income-reporting forms. "Half of the total forms submitted were destroyed upon receipt," alleges a committee report being prepared for release.

The tax agents have found that they catch more chiselers and enrich the U.S. treasury when they take the time to match the reporting forms against the tax returns. In 1972, for example, regular audits returned $83 in additional taxes for every hour of staff work, but investigators using the matching program recovered $215 per staff hour.

If all income forms were matched with tax returns, according to the congressional study, the federal government could recover at least $2 billion and perhaps as much as $10 billion annually.

Footnote: An IRS spokesman said it is difficult to assess the amount of extra revenue that would be generated by a matching program. It is "a hard thing to define exactly to the dollar," he said. The IRS hopes to have a complete matching program in operation within two years, he added.

SOUTH AFRICAN INCIDENT: American corporations have invested $1.6 billion in South Africa, and they are quick to justify the huge outlay with the claim that they have provided jobs and raised the living standard for the country's black majority.

Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, who chairs the Senate subcommittee on Africa, doesn't fully believe the line the corporations are handing out. He is investigating allegations that American firms are making big bucks by taking advantage of South Africa's apartheid policies.

For example, one giant multi-national company, Lummus Corporation, planned to capitalize on South African apartheid if it were awarded a major construction contract.

Internal documents, intended for corporate officials' eyes only, spell out how Lummus expected to reduce labor costs by hiring large numbers of South African blacks. The firm also planned to construct separate and unequal housing, dining and recreation facilities for blacks and whites who worked on the project. Here are the details:

In 1974, Lummus submitted a bid to South Africa's white regime for a $1 billion contract to build a plant for converting coal to gas by an innovative process known as Sasol II. Lummus, it turned out, never got the job.

But the company drew up an intricate proposal designed to take advantage of South Africa's cheap black labor. "The objectives of this plan," states one draft document, "are to maximize the economic participation of South African labor ... and to construct the new facilities with quality workmanship at the lowest practical cost."

A "key element" of the proposal was a "training program for black workers, which are in adequate supply in the Republic of South Africa." The use of blacks, it was anticipated, would "result in substantial reduction in the average rand-hr. paid for skilled labor."

Another confidential document outlines Lummus' plans for building separate "townships" for blacks and whites. The proposed township for 1,140 European whites, the plan states, should encompass an area of approximately 10 square miles and consist exclusively of three-and-four-bedroom homes.

The black township, on the other hand, would be planned to accommodate seven times more blacks in an area half the size of the white township. It would initially consist, in part, of apartment dwellings, "in barracks form to accommodate nine blacks per room."

Dining and recreation facilities for whites and blacks also would have differed markedly.

Footnote: A Lummus spokesman said the proposalS were drawn up specifically to conform with "requirements of local law" in South Africa.

PBA Chief Says 'Noisy Protests Will Continue'

Patrolmen Reject City-Union Contract Agreement

NEW YORK (UPI) — The delegate assembly of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association has unanimously rejected a tentative contract agreement reached between the leadership of the union and city officials.

Douglas Weaving, president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, said in announcing the contract rejection that noisy protests will continue and that he might lead some of them. It was not certain whether he would participate in a mass demonstration at City Hall set for today.

Police Commissioner Michael Codd said there will be police at the rally to ensure that it is "orderly and peaceful."

The proposed contract hammered out before dawn Thursday by representatives of the city and the PBA was unanimously rejected by delegates from the union at a meeting in the Police Academy later in the day.

Mayor Abraham Beame told newsmen that the rejected pact would have cost the city $28,697 a year for each policeman in the city. He said the situation was a "stalemate" in which it was up to the PBA to make the next move.

Off-duty officers had staged noisy protests daily for the past week, picketing Gracie Mansion and Codd's home in Queens, blocking traffic in Times Square and parading at Yankee Stadium during the Ali-Norton heavyweight bout.

Many on-duty policemen assigned to the stadium stood by while groups of youngsters attacked and harassed fans attending the fight.

The police union is demanding a retroactive 6 per cent pay raise and cancellation of a schedule change that would require city cops to work an extra 10 days a year.

Beame and other city officials said the tentative pact required the city to rehire 400 laid-off cops with money earmarked for a police annuity fund, modify the schedule to provide more time between swing shifts, pay the 6 per cent wage hike retroactive to July 1 and pay cost-of-living allowances.

The union would have dropped a suit against the city demanding the retroactive pay raise and accepted the extra 10 days of annual work.

The PBA was the only municipal union that did not sign a wage deferral agreement at the height of the city's fiscal crisis. Members of unions that signed such agreements are now receiving their increased pay.

After the vote of the 350-member delegate assembly at the Police Academy, Weaving told reporters, "They rejected the entire package unanimously."

He said they also rejected a proposal to submit the agreement to a vote by the PBA's 18,000 members.

Redeemed Rizzo Radiant At Ruling

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A beaming Mayor Frank L. Rizzo popped open a bottle of champagne, while several blocks away a misty-eyed leader of a move to oust him from office also claimed victory.

"I never had any doubt that the Pennsylvania Supreme Court would rule on the facts," Rizzo said Thursday after learning the court had ruled he would not have to face a recall election Nov. 2.

The court, in a 4-2-1 decision, overruled a lower court decision, which had validated petitions seeking to oust the former police chief as mayor and had ordered the city election commissioners to put a "yes-no" recall vote on the ballot.

Shelley Yanoff, organizer of the Citizens Committee to Recall Rizzo, told several downcast supporters the decision was "a terrible disappointment."

However, she said, "We feel we have won. We hope those signatures did send a message against the abuse of power."

Two justices dissenting said the order placing the recall referendum on the ballot should be affirmed. Justice Michael J. Eagen, who abstained, said the case should be sent back to the lower court for a complete hearing.

The justices said they would file their opinions shortly.

Rizzo, at a hastily called news conference—his first in several years—said his "political career has suffered no blow."

"I'm grateful to the Supreme Court," Rizzo said. "I say if I would run for election in this city today, I would win bigger than I did last time."

Philadelphia Mayor Frank L. Rizzo toasts success.

The recall movement began in January, three months after Rizzo won re-election by a landslide, when his administration announced the city faced an $80 million to $100 million deficit requiring higher taxes. It gained further impetus on March 19 when construction union workers, who supported Rizzo, blockaded the Philadelphia Inquirer newspaper building.

The committee collected more than 211,000 signatures on recall petitions. Under provisions of the home-rule charter, they needed 145,448 valid signatures to force Rizzo to either resign in 10 days or face the recall election.

The city commissioners, by a 2-1 vote, ruled the petitions did not contain the necessary number of valid signatures, but they were overruled by Savitt.

Job Bills: Ford Says He'll Sign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford opposed every legislative step of two major job bills now on his desk — but says he will sign them although he feels one will lead to higher inflation and in the long run higher unemployment.

White House officials said the decision was relayed to congressional leaders Thursday.

The leaders had asked Ford whether he planned to pocket veto the bills after Congress adjourns for the year, which it hopes to do tonight. They intended to keep House and Senate in session longer if necessary, to be in position to override.

One of the bills is a $3.7 billion appropriation for public works construction projects, budget aid to state and local governments and a small amount for building water treatment plants — all of which, proponents claim, would create 300,000 jobs.

Ford has twice vetoed earlier authorization versions of that bill. Congress first narrowly upheld his veto. The second time it voted to override.

In his second veto in July, Ford said the bill would create only half the jobs claimed, that the cost would be $25,000 per job, and that most of the jobs would not materialize for 18 months, when they would overstimulate an improving economy and create "larger deficits, higher taxes, higher inflation and, ultimately, higher unemployment."

But Ford was under strong and obvious pressures to sign. Unemployment rose to 7.9 per cent in August. Congress presumably could muster the votes to override again. States and localities already are writing applications for the public works projects.

The other bill would extend 260,000 existing public service jobs in state and local governments through the next fiscal year, with the possibility Congress could increase them to 500,000 by adding more money in January.

Ford had wanted to phase these jobs out during the coming fiscal year, arguing that the way to deal with unemployment is to heal the economy, not directly create temporary jobs.

Bombing At Upstate School

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Eleven students at the suburban Penfield High School have been arrested by Monroe County sheriff's deputies after two pipe bombs exploded at the school.

Authorities said the two bombs exploded Thursday on the second floor of the school, one in a boy's rest room. No injuries were reported.

Deputies said three of the youths who were arrested were charged with first-degree arson while eight others were charged with third-degree criminal possession of a dangerous weapon.

Three of the youths arrested are juveniles and will be petitioned to Family Court, deputies said.

Ulster County's Past To Be Reflected in Festival Flower Show

KINGSTON—In this bicentennial year, Kingston's Fall Festival, Saturday, Oct. 9, will reflect Ulster County's past. One of the events featured will be a flower show opened to the public and sponsored by Friends of Historic Kingston, Uptown Businessmen's Association and the Chamber of Commerce.

The show will be held on the main floor of Statewide Savings and Loan Association, Wall Street. All entries must be registered at the rear door 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. and there will be a $1 entry fee. Exhibitors must pre-register planned entries with the Division consultants in advance by Oct. 6. Chairpeople for the flower show are Mrs. Henry H. Parker, Kingston; Mrs. E. Robert Johnson and Mrs. Glenn Stampfle, both of Saugerties.

The theme this year will be "1776-Independence" commemorating the signing of the Declaration of Independence; the Continental Forces; headquarters-homes of American Generals and Officers; the American Militia in the field and the youth involved as the Revolutionary Drummer Boy. This large theme is divided into five sections with 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, awards in each.

Divisions are:

Division 1—Artistic Design for adults, the General's Headquarters, arrangements as might have been found in the finer homes during this period in history, consultants, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Stampfle.

Division 2—Artistic Design for adults, Minutemen in action (Revolutionary Soldiers in the field). Arrangements using field flowers fresh or dried, nuts, leaves, berries, pine cones., with supportive material such as bark, stone, wood, and the container should be basketry, tinware, earthenware, pottery, anything that will evoke a soldiers' encampment. Consultant, Mrs. Johnson.

Division 3—Children's Artistic Design, (ages 6 - 10), The Drummer Boy. Arrangements using revolutionary type toys such as toy cannons, guns, sabers, cornhusk dolls or rag dolls. Consultant, Mrs. Johnson.

Division 4—Youth's Artistic Design (ages 11-16), The Liberty Bell, Independence Hall. This division is open to the full play of imagination and creativity. Supportive material may be used, such as parchment, quill pens and ink pots. Consultant Mrs. Johnson.

Division 5 is horticulture and is divided into four subgroups: 1. Roses, 2. Potted Plants or Hanging Plants; 3. Cuttings; 4. Terrariums.

All plant materials must have been grown by the exhibitor and potted plants including terrariums must have been in the grower's care for at least one month.

The judging will be by popular vote of spectators by division. There will be a guest fee of 50 cents per adult and 25 cents per child under 16. All income from the show will be utilized by the Friends of Historic Kingston for the Restoration-Preservation Fund.

Special Kindergarten Program Offered at Children's Annex

WOODSTOCK—The Children's Annex now provides a supplemental kindergarten program for children attending half day kindergarten classes who would benefit from a full day experience.

The program stresses early intervention and is available for children who are believed to have a maturational lag in language development, auditory or visual perception, or motor activity. It is specifically designed to help children who are either now repeating their kindergarten year or who may need to repeat kindergarten next year.

Curriculum for the class includes both gross and fine motor training, auditory and visual perception programs, language development activities, art, music, dramatics and readiness skills for both reading and mathematics.

Registration is now open for this kindergarten program. The Children's Annex continues to accept students in the full day kindergarten class, as well as, the elementary grades.

The Children's Annex is a school for children with learning problems. It is associated with The Woodstock Children's Center and it is located in The Dutch Reformed Church in Woodstock.

For further information, call Mrs. Robert Payton in Zena or Ms. Susan Carey in Woodstock or write to The Children's Annex, 16 Tinker St., Woodstock.

DEAR ABBY

Mother Lives Amid Filth, Germs and Cats Galore

DEAR ABBY: I'm 26 and the mother of two boys, ages 3 and 5. My mother, a widow, lives about an hour's drive from me, but I refuse to visit her again because of the condition of her house.

She NEVER washes her kitchen and bathroom floors! The toilet doesn't work, and the stench is unbearable. She has so many cats running around you can't count them, and you can smell their urine even before you open her front door. (She burns candles to mask the odor.)

I don't claim to be a perfect housekeeper, but I can't tolerate filth and germs. I'm so afraid my children will pick up something there. My oldest son refused to sit on her toilet. I cleaned up the place a year ago, but she hasn't done a thing to it since. The last time we were there she wanted to give us dinner, but we lied and said we just ate. (My husband won't even have a glass of water there)

Abby, I've done all I can. I feel guilty not visiting her, but I just can't stand the way she lives. Am I wrong? —ONLY DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Yes! Your mother must be sick to live with the conditions you describe. Please pack her up immediately and take her to a doctor for a thorough physical and mental examination. She should not be living alone!

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell your ex-mother-in-law who insists that you are still part of her "family" that you don't want to be?

I hate to come right out and insult the woman, but I may have to. I have been divorced from her daughter for three years and am now married to another woman, but whenever my former mother-in-law sees me, she calls me "son." She keeps trying to be friendly with my present wife, telling her that she is also now part of her family.

This irritates me no end, Abby. There is no religious reason for her ignoring my divorce since she is an atheist. —BOTHERED IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR BOTHERED: If she wants to consider you and your wife part of her "family," let her. YOU know better, but nothing will be gained by insulting her or making an issue of it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 40-year-old attractive divorcee who has been going with this 59-year-old widower for the last two years. He has five grown children and I have four. My youngest is 18, and she recently got her own apartment. I really love this man, but he says he will never marry me. He has money and he's very generous. We've taken several nice trips together, and he is fun to be with. But I have the feeling his children don't care much for me.

Sometimes I think maybe I should be looking out for my future and spending my time with men who might marry me. Do you think if I go with him for another year I might be able to break him down? —UNDECIDED

DEAR UN: Thank your lucky stars he was honest enough to tell you he's not marriage material. Look for a man who is.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

"Tree Under An Orange Sky" is one of a group of recent paintings by New York City artist Jehan Shahly to go on exhibition at Ulster County Community College from Oct. 3 to 29. Her original direction in art was abstract expressionism, and her recent paintings have become more natural representational, resulting in emotionally moody renderings of figures and landscape.

Ali: I'm Quitting 'As of Today'

ISTANBUL (UPI) — World heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali, who three days ago barely defeated Ken Norton in a 15-round title defense, said this morning he was quitting the ring "as of today."

"I want to announce at this moment in this country that I retire from boxing as of today," said Ali, who arrived in Istanbul this morning at the invitation of state minister Hasan Aksay.

The 34-year-old champion was responding to a request by Wallace Muhammad, self-styled leader of the American Moslems, that Ali quit the ring and use "the fist of his tongue" in the cause of Islam.

Wallace made the request and Ali promised to comply at a joint news conference here. The two men are on separate visits to Turkey.

"Since he (Ali) has indicated he is seriously considering retiring from boxing and taking up the battle for truth, I want to ask him right now at this press conference to pledge to retire from the ring and use his power — the fist of his tongue, instead of the fist of the ring — for truth," Wallace Muhammad said.

"He has the inspirational power to wake up the slumbering people of this world, and I am asking him now to retire."

The champion replied, "I want to say that it has been my lifetime dream to be champion and retire from the ring and then use my influence and fame in the work of Islam and Allah. I have many people advising me to retire and many people advising me to fight just a few more times."

"I do not want to lose a fight and if I keep bowing I may lose. I may gain much money (if he continued to fight), but the love of the Moslems and the hearts of my people are more valuable than personal gain."

"So I am going to stop while everyone is happy and I am still winning. This (Wallace) is my leader, this is my spiritual teacher in Islam and I want to retire anyway. Now he has advised me it will be wise.

"I have no confusion in my mind. I want to announce at this moment in this country that I retire from boxing as of today."

On his arrival in Istanbul earlier today, Ali had told reporters he intended to fight George Foreman one more time and then quit the ring, but apparently changed his mind after talking to Wallace Muhammad and announced he would fight no more.

Looking weary after his long overnight flight from New York via London, Ali was helped down the steps of the Turkish Airlines jet by aides.

He told reporters the recent victory over Norton had tired him out, but apart from a slight pain in the neck there were no aftereffects.

Ali is on a one-day visit to Turkey as guest of the government.

After their joint news conference Ali and Wallace joined Turkish leaders in noon prayers at Istanbul's famed Blue Mosque, where thousands cheered the champion.

Ali was thought by many veteran observers to have lost that rubber match with Norton. The 34-year-old Ali was given a close and unanimous decision in the 15-round bout at Yankee Stadium — 8-6-1 by referee Arthur Mercante and 8-7 by judges Harold Lederman and Barney Smith.

It was Ali's 17th successful title defense but was greeted with such disbelief by the 31-year-old Norton that the challenger said he would retire from the ring if not allowed a chance to meet Ali for a fourth time.

Will Vandalism, Crime Make Stadium Off-Limits?

NEW YORK (UPI) — A lot of those Yankee Stadium seats which were empty for the Muhammad Ali-Ken Norton heavyweight championship fight may remain that way for the upcoming baseball playoffs in the wake of the chaos and crime which erupted inside and outside the Bronx ballpark last Tuesday night.

Although the American League East champion New York Yankees still predict sellout crowds for the Oct. 12 and, if necessary, 13 and 14 playoff games, there was little question that the bands of youths which terrorized fans in and around the stadium the night of the fight have begun to make the refurbished old ballpark look like a $100 million black eye to the city.

It's rather like that old axiom — you can dress 'em up, but you still can't take 'em out.

Well, they've dressed up Yankee Stadium real nice, but they haven't been able to do too much about the neighborhood where, even before the fight, vandalism and crime have remained a fact of life.

After a New York Jets' exhibition football game, 35 cars had their tires slashed and when the victims tried to get them replaced, the local garages, exploiting the situation, demanded exorbitant prices for new tires.

In addition, a shooting took place after the Jets-New York Giants exhibition, while on fight night, muggings, purse snatchings, looting and destruction of property was commonplace and off-duty police added to the chaos by staging a massive demonstration.

"You have to understand, the fight was a unique situation," said Marty Appel, public relations director for the Yankees. "You had the New York City policemen demonstrating outside plus the nature of the fight itself attracted a crowd which tends to mill around the park instead of going right in—like at a baseball game."

The Yankees, of course, can only control what goes on inside the ballpark and, in that regard, there have been few incidents. It is outside, however, where patrons are becoming increasingly more alarmed with the crime and even the police can't guarantee their safety.

"We will have adequate number of police on patrol for the playoffs," said a spokesman for the City Tactical Patrol Force. "I can't give you specific numbers, but you can be assured it will be adequate."

Yet, for a fight which was expected to draw nearly 40,000 and wound up with a crowd about 10,000 less than that, chaos ruled the night.

The Yankees maintain the baseball playoffs will be a different story.

"We still expect sellouts for all three games," Appel said.

However, as one fight fan was quoted by a local daily, "I lost $140 at the fight but the city lost $100 million. No way I'll ever come back here. They can give the place to (former Mayor) John Lindsay as far as I'm concerned."

The Yankees and the beleaguered City of New York will be anxiously watching next week to see which of those two observations on the mood of the Yankee Stadium fan is closer to the truth.

Ketcham's Versatility Concerns KHS Coach

By STEVE KANE
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — The DCSL's two unbeaten teams, Kingston and Ketcham High, are due to clash in Dietz Stadium Saturday in what is also a meeting of two honorable mentions in the New York State Sportswriters' weekly poll. The way Ketcham coach Ken Lynn sees it, it's the big man (Kingston) against the little man (Ketcham), but Tony Badalato isn't buying that.

"Ketcham's not small," argued the Tiger coach. "They'll match up to us physically. This will be our toughest game so far."

Elsewhere Saturday, Saugerties may also be facing its most difficult test in visiting John Jay. Lourdes is at Poughkeepsie, and Roosevelt is at Beacon in other league contests.

The size factor has worked to Kingston's advantage thus far, and despite Badalato's protestations, the Tigers should have the edge in muscle up front.

It might not mean too much, though. Lynn isn't planning on simply slugging it out.

"We can't hit people straight on all day," said Lynn. "That size angle could wear us down."

Ketcham does a lot of things, and that's what has got Badalato concerned. "They've got speed...they're quick," said the Tiger coach. "We must contain around the ends. We're looking for lots of counters and reverses Saturday."

Randy Reid, Dennis Kenny and Dave Van Shank are the ballcarriers that have been effective for the Indians so far. The RCK quarterback is Joel Thomas who Lynn thinks "can throw with anybody in the league." Ketcham's outstanding lineman is two-way performer Bill Leary, a 220-pounder who's a sure bet for all-star honors.

KHS has also produced a few people who have proven themselves in the first two games. On offense, Badalato knows he's got a reliable backfield. Joel Etter has two 100-yard games, Rick Knox has three touchdowns, and Tom Brown has been highly effective, if somewhat overlooked, as a blocker. There are few faults to be found either with the blocking up front or the play of quarterbacks Joe Kivlan and Bruce Schnackenberg.

Defensively, it's been linemen John Falatyn and Al Schmidt, linebacker Tom Loughlin and halfback Clark Waters who have led their units.

The Tigers have also made very few mistakes. Except for a couple of fumbles in the mud on opening day, none of which did any damage, they have had no other turnovers. The defensive team has recovered six fumbles and snatched three interceptions during that same period.

"I think the key will be turnovers," said Badalato.

Sawyer coach Fred Seither, on the other hand, has no idea what the critical part of the battle with John Jay will be. "I just don't know what to expect from John Jay," Seither admitted. The mystery is mainly because the Patriots have played only Kingston so far, and that contest was bogged down in the rain.

Seither, though, has enough other worries to keep him busy. "We're not big, and we're not fast, and our offense is not producing points," said the Sawyer coach. "I can't put my finger on why—there's no individual to blame. It's a team thing. We're just not getting the hole, and our backs are not that big or fast."

Still, the DCSL is not quite up there with death and taxes. Poughkeepsie, a team which barely managed to tie the Sawyers on opening day, knocked off heavily favored Arlington last week.

"I couldn't believe they did that," said Seither whose defense stopped the Pioneer air game. Perhaps that bodes well for the Sawyers who will no doubt face an aerial or two from Patriot Ron Stakow. But Seither is still concerned with stopping John Jay's running. Ketcham burned the Sawyers off the corners last week, and the Pats have a speedster in halfback Corkee Macek.

Pine Bush Looking to Turn Things Around

By BRUCE GOLDBERG
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON—Pine Bush High School's varsity football team has the habit of starting out slow, then coming on strong, such as in 1975 when the Bushmen dropped their first two contests, then won their final seven to share the Ulster County Athletic League title with Rondout and Wallkill.

"I'd like to see that pattern again," said PB coach John Shaughnessy. "With our wing-T offense, it takes a while to install. There's a lot of pulling, trapping and motion and it takes time to learn."

Pine Bush has started out with a 3-7 loss at the hands of Wallkill and last Saturday's frustrating 0-0 tie with Red Hook. If there is indeed a pattern, then PB would be in for a win against visiting Marlboro Saturday. If there is a pattern.

In other UCAL games, Liberty is at Highland, Ellenville is at Rondout, Onteora is at New Paltz and Wallkill is at Red Hook.

"From our point of view," said Shaughnessy, "it's an important game. We both have one loss."

Marlboro is enjoying an upsurge after a win over Red Hook, 28-8, and a respectable showing in last week's 28-13 loss to Wallkill. Coach Dennis Burkett has a powerful offense with pass-catcher Anthony Monroe, halfback Terry Monroe, fullback Sean O'Boyle and quarterback Daves Onusko. The Ducks are third in the league in total offense (615 yards) and rushing (444).

Pine Bush, meanwhile, has scored just seven points and gained just 271 total offensive yards. "No question about it, our offense is a problem," admitted Shaughnessy. "So for Saturday, we've made some personnel changes to get more size on the right side."

The new line personnel includes Bobby Knoll at guard, John Bolock at tackle and Steve Low at end. Mark Warren, 1975's starter, replaces Glen Vogt at quarterback and Bruce Wegner moves in at fullback.

"Even though we won 21-7 last year," said Shaughnessy, "it was a very close game."

Onteora faces a big challenge in New Paltz. The Huguenots (2-0) have not yielded a point and lead the UCAL in total offense (669) and passing (199).

"We've seen New Paltz," said Onteora coach John Meehan. "They've impressed us on both offense and defense. They've shown they can move the ball both on the ground and through the air."

"We have to play a real fine game on defense to beat New Paltz," Meehan added. "We got beat by a couple of big plays in each of our losses. But I was really proud of the way our kids played last Saturday against Rondout. They didn't give them anything. Rondout had to work for it (a 16-6 win)."

Ellenville is also hoping that history repeats. Its only touchdown of the 1975 season came in the third game—against Rondout, Saturday's foe. The Blue Devils are still looking for TD No. 1. The Ganders have scored the most points (65) in the UCAL.

Wallkill is No. 2 in points (62). If Wallkill beats Marlboro by two TDs and Marlboro beats RH by three, what's going to happen when Wallkill meets RH?

Liberty showed signs of life in its 7-0 loss to New Paltz, although the Hugies had a couple of scores called back. But once again the Indians will have their hands full with Highland, which has yielded only six points.

Canton Game Heads Slate

By UPI

While the eyes of the college football world will be trained on Columbus, Ohio, this Saturday there will be an interesting little battle going on in Canton, N.Y.

Although it may not be as big as the UCLA-Ohio St. game, the Hobart-St. Lawrence clash Saturday afternoon could have a lot to do with the future of the two New York State clubs.

Hobart takes a 2-0 record and its top-notch rushing offense into the game with the Larries, who are ranked 8th in the nation among Division III colleges by the NCAA.

In other key games this weekend, C.W. Post, the No. 1 ranked Division III team in the nation, visits Division II foe Bucknell. Syracuse hosts PAC 8 member Oregon St., Pennsylvania hosts Columbia, Stanford visits Army and Albany St. plays host to RIT.

Hobart has piled up 697 yards rushing in its first two wins this season, averaging an incredible 348.5 yards per game. Halfback Jack Davis leads the Hobart rushers with 206 yards on 31 carries.

New York Could Be Next For Legalized Grid Betting

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The Western Regional Off-Track Betting Corp. of New York Thursday unveiled a proposal by which legalized betting on professional football could be implemented in New York State.

The plan was outlined at the National Conference on Public Gaming in West Palm Beach, Fla.

If the plan were approved, New York would become the second state in the nation to legalize betting on pro football. Delaware began the practice last month.

WROTB counsel John Gannon told the types of lotteries.

WROTB general manager Fred Herman urged New York officials to put pro football wagering under control of the state's six OTB operations.

He said start-up costs would be minimal, since off-track betting's computerized systems are already in operation.

Under the plan, the state would receive 45 per cent of the gross wagering, with 40 per cent going to bettors and the remaining 15 per cent for administrative costs. Part of the administrative costs would be

Freeman Expanding Racing Coverage

KINGSTON — With the opening of two Off-Track Betting parlors in Ulster County, the Daily Freeman and Sunday Freeman will be expanding its coverage of thoroughbred and harness racing beginning next week.

In addition to our listing of Monticello Raceway entries and results, the Daily Freeman and Sunday Freeman will publish entries and results from the metropolitan area flat and harness tracks. That would include Aqueduct, Belmont and Saratoga race tracks, plus Yonkers and Roosevelt Raceways.

Watch for this expanded racing coverage beginning next week in the Daily Freeman and Sunday Freeman.

gathering that pro football wagering is "another type of legalized lottery game, as has been established by the Delaware Lottery Commission." Thus, he said, pro football betting could be carried out under New York's present lottery law.

Gannon said New York's lottery law is similar to the Delaware lottery statute. The courts have allowed pro football betting in that state, based on its lottery law, he added.

Gannon also referred to legal "numbers" games in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, which he said are conducted as reimbursed to OTB member municipalities on the basis of population and origin of bet, Herman said.

He also urged other OTB operations in New York State to approve those percentages, and thus avoid the need for a constitutional amendment, which could delay implementation for three years.

New York's OTB systems are expected to handle over $1 billion in horse racing bets this year.

WROTB is based in Batavia and serves Buffalo and Rochester, the state's second and third largest cities, respectively.

Phils, KC Need Togetherness

By UPI
Getting it together.
That's the motto the Kansas City Royals and the Philadelphia Phillies will have to adopt this weekend if they hope to put up a competitive fight in the upcoming baseball playoffs.

The Royals still need one victory against Minnesota (or one loss by Oakland) in their final three games of the season to lock up the American League West and meet the New York Yankees in the AL championship series. But, at this point of the season, a sweep of the Twins' series is needed for the Royals to build momentum after a long dry spell.
"We feel like it is a must for us to win all three games," said the Royals' Hal McRae. "If we are going to put together some momentum, we can't win a game and then lose a couple. We have to go out and win a bunch in a row."

The Phillies have already clinched the National League East title, but they've developed problems of a different sort. Stories of internal disputes on the club, some of them racist oriented, erupted Thursday and at the center of the trouble was none other than Mr. Controversy himself, Dick Allen.
Phillies' manager Danny Ozark held a team meeting prior to Wednesday night's game with the St. Louis Cardinals during which the air was cleared of some grievances. The biggest gripe concerned Allen's having left the club, apparently with little warning and no prior approval, after Sunday's doubleheader in Montreal and going home to Perkasie, Pa.

The team also was supposedly upset at Allen's ultimatum a week ago that he would not participate in the playoffs and the World Series unless veteran Tony Taylor, a long-time friend, is included on the 25-man post-season roster. They also were miffed at Allen's not participating in the champagne celebration after the division flag was clinched at Montreal and at five black players, who remained in the clubhouse during the second game of the Montreal doubleheader after the pennant was won and held their own celebration.

Tug McGraw, a relief pitcher with the Phillies, was the player who voiced the loudest criticism of Allen.
"If he's so hot to celebrate with his family, he should have flown them here," McGraw was quoted as saying. "He makes $250,000 a year. He can afford it. They said he's been hitting an hour and a half every day at home. What the hell does he think his teammates are doing out here?"
"I don't see this strictly a race thing. I see it as a thing where some guys — black and white — who really admire Dick and his independent ways are letting him influence their attitudes toward the club. A lot of us would like to be home celebrating, but the schedule says we've still got four games left to play."
If the Phillies can't get things smoothed over by the time the playoffs begin a week from Saturday, they could be in for trouble. They'll need a complete team effort if they are to offer a stiff challenge to the defending world champion Cincinnati Reds.
There were only two games played in the majors Thursday night, both in the American League, as the majority of the teams enjoyed the night off before cranking up for the final weekend of the season. Detroit edged Cleveland 6-4 and California topped Chicago 7-3.

Tigers 6, Indians 4
Rusty Staub's two-run double highlighted a five-run fourth inning that carried the Tigers to victory over the Indians. Rookie Ed Glynn went 5-2-3 in innings to gain his first big league win while Rick Waits took the loss.
Angels 7, White Sox 3
Ron Jackson collected three hits, drove in one run and scored another to lead the Angels to victory over the White Sox. Left-hander Sid Monge worked the first 6-1-3 innings to earn his sixth victory against seven losses. Chet Lemon hit a two-run homer for the White Sox.

Two Key College Grid Pairings

By UPI
"Athens can be the hottest place in the world to play football"—Paul "Bear" Bryant, Alabama coach.

"I've never been to Hell, but I've heard about it. I think it will be like that next Saturday when we play at Columbus, Ohio"—Wendell Tyler, UCLA running back.

Athens, Ga., pop. 44,342, and Columbus, Ohio, pop. 540,025, will be the focal points of the nation's college football aficionados Saturday when four of the top nine ranked teams meet each other in two key contests that have all the earmarks of being miniature wars.

At Athens, sixth-ranked Georgia takes on ninth-ranked Alabama in a game that could go a long way toward determining the Southeastern Conference championship. Georgia has not won the SEC since 1968 while Alabama has captured the league crown the last five years.

The game at Columbus will have no bearing on any conference race, but it will rematch the two teams who slugged it out in the Rose Bowl last January. UCLA, the winner of that New Year's Day contest and currently the No. 2 ranked team in the nation, meets eighth-ranked Ohio State in a nationally-telvised contest.

Both Bryant and Coach Woody Hayes of Ohio State find themselves in a rather unusual position for this early in the season in that their clubs have already suffered a loss. Alabama was upset by Mississippi in its season opener while Ohio State was upended by Missouri last Saturday at Columbus.

Georgia and UCLA, on the other hand, have each won their first three games. Georgia whipped California and Clemson soundly, then out-fought South Carolina last Saturday, while UCLA has overpowered its three foes, Arizona State, Arizona and Air Force.

Then, why are both the Bulldogs and the Bruins underdogs for Saturday's contests? In Georgia's case it's simply a

Fallsburgh Upsets Onteora in Field Hockey

BOICEVILLE—It took four games to crack the Onteora High School field hockey defense, but the door finally opened Thursday as Fallsburgh intruded with a two-goal second half rally to hand the previously unscathed team a 2-1 loss.

The unblemished record got its first scratches as Fallsburgh opened fire on goalkeeper Lori Bedell and collected its first victory of the season in the UCAL contest. In other action, Coleman blanked Rondout Valley, 2-0; Red Hook took New Paltz, 5-0; and Pine Bush nipped Ellenville, 2-1.

"I thought we controlled the game," said Onteora coach Carol Okoren. "We played well and had lots of opportunities. Fallsburgh was just able to clear the ball quickly for the big break."

Bernie Rexford opened the scoring for Fallsburgh at 13:00 of the first half, going in one-on-one against goalkeeper Sandra Williams. Tami Beahm tied the game at 15:00, intercepting a clearing shot by Williams and slapping it home. Sandy Wexler provided the edge with her unassisted tally at 19:00.

By virtue of its impressive win, Red Hook remains the only unbeaten team in the league at 4-0, and kept its hopes alive for a third undefeated season in a row. Pat Kowalski continued her scoring spree with the hat trick, bringing her season's total to four. Donna Schultz whizzed one by goalkeeper Liz Gallo to begin the scoring. Ann Hach was responsible for the other Red Hook tally.

Coleman evened its record at 2-2 with Kathy Murphy setting up goals by Fran LaWare and Jaime Widmann after a scoreless first half. Janet Knott played especially well at center half back and was praised by Coleman coach Deb Getty for her defensive efforts. "She did an excellent job backing up the forward line," said Getty. "Cynthia Thompson and Terri Storms were also outstanding on defense."

In a wide-open contest, Pine Bush nipped Ellenville on goals by Karen Andrews and Michele Edwards. Aranetta Wright beat goalkeeper Pat Jackson after being set up by Cheryl Eiksztz which tied the game at the half. Anita Manpel stopped a penalty shot early in the second half to keep the contest close.

The upcoming schedule sends Red Hook to Walkill, Nsw Paltz to Pine Bush, Fallsburgh to Ellenville, while Rondout Valley will travel to Onteora next Tuesday.

NHL PREVIEWSHarris Is Dreaming

(This is another in a series sizing up the prospects of National Hockey League teams. Today: The Minnesota North Stars).

By JOHN KNUDSEN BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — An improved defense and a fast-skating offense that can generate 75 more goals than last season are the dreams of Ted Harris, the second-year coach of the Minnesota North Stars.

Minnesota owned the third worst record in the National Hockey League last year, 20-53, finishing ahead of only Washington and Kansas City, now the Colorado Rockies.

"We hope a better offense will take some of the pressure off our defensemen," Harris said. "Our defensemen were considered a problem last season, but we played with the puck in our defensive zone about 60 per cent of the time. "Our defense has to improve at moving the puck out of our end. It has to hit people, too. Tom Reid, Fred Barrett and Dennis O'Brien are our veterans there and must be our leaders. I hope Doug Hicks, Chris Ahrens and Dwight Bialowas will improve with another year's experience."

New players Harris believes will inject speed into the offense are Swedish center Roland Eriksson, No. 1 draft pick Glenn Sharpley and Olympic star Steve Jensen.

Along with great speed, Eriksson, who played for the Swedish national team in the recent Canada Cup tournament, is considered an exceptional stickhandler and back-checker.

Sharpley is a strong skater who is tough in the corners, while Jensen showed he could play in the NHL after joining the team late in the 1975-76 season.

"We scored 195 goals last year and we'll have to up that to about 270 this season," said Harris. "We've got a lot of guys who are capable of scoring 25 to 30 goals. We all know Bill Goldsworthy can score."

Harris said the potential 25-30 goal-scoring line includes Tim Young, Bill Hogaboam, Pierre Jarry, Ernie Hicke, Dean Talafous, Blake Dunlop, Eriksson and Jensen.

Eriksson has centered Jensen and Goldsworthy, the only original North Star, on the first line in camp. The second line consists of the top-scoring line of last year—wings Jarry and Talafous and center Young. The third line has Hogaboam centering Hicke and Sharpley.

The only off-season trade involved sending goaltender Cesare Maniago to Vancouver for goalie Gary Smith. The other goaltenders are Pete LoPresti and second year man Paul Harrison.

To make the playoffs for the first time since 1973, the North Stars must overtake either Chicago, St. Louis or Vancouver in the Smythe Division.

"If we're going to win we've got to develop some camaraderie," Harris said. "We're a young team and we've got to realize we're capable of winning. We've got to believe in ourselves."

At Least Caps Are In Shape

(This is another in a series sizing up the prospects of National Hockey League teams: the Washington Capitals.)

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — The Washington Capitals have an undistinguished 19-126-15 record in two National Hockey League seasons, but if they finish in the cellar again it won't be for lack of conditioning.

Tommy McVie, who became coach when Milt Schmidt was fired last December, runs a tough training camp. Players must run a mile in 5:45 and do sit-ups, push-ups and lots of skating.

McVie believes fitness, stamina and desire can offset the Caps' lack of talent, which still exists even though he and Max McNab, who took over Schmidt's general managing duties, have done a good job.

"A dream team would be one like the Russians have," said McVie. "However, we cannot expect our athletes, who live in a free society, to be complete spartans."

His training camp, at Hara Arena in Dayton, Ohio, represents probably as close to a spartan existence as any in the NHL. Workouts are held four times a day, and those who didn't follow McVie's summer training instructions found themselves in trouble.

"You have to be in shape or Tommy will kill you," said defenseman Gord Lane, who played for McVie with the Dayton Gems of the International Hockey League.

Defense will be the key if the Caps are to improve. Two years ago they gave up a record 443 goals, and last year they yielded 395.

"If each pair of defensemen we have can come out of each game with no more than one goal — and hopefully none — scored against, the Capitals will win games," said Jack Lynch, who spent all of last year with the Caps.

"We have six defensemen and if we hold to one goal per twosome, that's only three a game against us."

Third-year bonus baby Greg Joly, 22, who sat out much of last season with a broken ankle, is the team's most talented player. But he hasn't had time to learn McVie's system.

"He has a lot of bad habits that are holding him back," said McVie. "Now and then he fights the system without really knowing it. He certainly has the skills to play in this league."

Other holdovers include Yvon Labre, the team captain, and Jean Lemieux, obtained in the trade that sent Bill Clement to Atlanta last season.

In goal, the Caps are set with last year's most valuable player, Bernie Wolfe (4.05 goals against average) and veteran Ron Low (5.45).

Washington dealt away its leading scorer, Nelson Pyatt, to the Colorado Rockies to obtain a more complete center, 27-year-old Guy Charron.

Gerry Meenan, who also came from Atlanta in the Clement trade, speedy Rick Bragnalo and Ron Lalonde are other centers. Lalonde is used chiefly as a penalty killer.

The Caps are weakest on the wings. The top prospects are 26-year-old Mike Lampman, who flunked trials with St. Louis and Vancouver but appears now to be ready, and Tony White, who came up from Dayton last season and scored 25 goals.

West Debuts

Former Los Angeles Laker star Jerry West gives his team instructions during his NBA coaching debut Thursday night in Portland. West's Lakers were beaten by Trailblazers, 114-110, in exhibition game.

Forego, 10 Others Vie For Marlboro Cup Win

NEW YORK (UPI) — An incredible weight burden on Mrs. Martha Gerry's Forego has emboldened 10 competitors to test the two-time Horse of the Year Saturday in the $250,000 Marlboro Cup at Belmont Park.

The 6-year-old Forego will carry 137 pounds, conceding 18 pounds to his nearest competitor and approximately 25 to most of the field in the 1 1/4-mile contest.

Bill Shoemaker, who rode Forego to victory in the Woodward Handicap two weeks ago, apparently has unseated Heliodoro Gustines as the regular rider on the gelded son of Forli.

A huge 17-hand gelding, Forego will be asked to carry more weight than ever before in his outstanding career. Pursuing the all-time money winning record of Kelso, Forego has won five of seven starts this year to become the fourth-leading money winner in thoroughbred history with $1,484,977.

With 11 starters, the Cup will be worth $283,700 and the winner will receive $170,220.

Forego was listed as a 6-5 favorite in the early line.

Big Names Are Missing

Altgelt, Armstrong Tied

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — In the absence of most of the tour's big names in the $135,000 Sahara Invitational, Stan Altgelt and Wally Armstrong are making noises.

Stan Altgelt? Wally Armstrong?

Altgelt is a 27-year-old rookie from Dallas, Tex., who took four tries before getting his tour card last fall.

Armstrong, 31, is a four-year pro from Orlando, Fla., who is better known than Altgelt—but not by much. On a Thursday when the temperature reached 91 and a whopping 47 of the 144 pros broke par over the 6,800-yard Sahara-Nevada Country Club course, Altgelt and Armstrong fired seven-under 64s.

That was good enough for a two-stroke advantage over the trio of 46-year-old veteran Don January, 1974 U.S. Open champion Lou Graham and second-year pro Bruce Lietzke.

British Open titlist Johnny Miller was supposed to play here as was Al Geiberger, the 1974 Sahara winner who is No. 6 on the PGA money list.

But Miller withdrew because of a sore back and Geiberger pulled out after his wife gave birth to a boy Monday.

J.C. Snead, who beat Miller and Gibby Gilbert by two shots in last weekend's Kaiser at Napa, Calif., was seven shots back after an opening round 71. Gilbert withdrew here after shooting a 79 Thursday.

"It's not an easy golf course but it's not a hard golf course, either," said January in explaining the brilliant first-day scores.

"The wind blew at times and at times it didn't. This is the best condition I've ever seen this course. It's in beautiful shape."

Snead, No. 5, and January, No. 10, are the only members of pro golf's top 10—on the PGA money list—present and none of the winners of this year's four major events—PGA winner Dave Stockton, U.S. Open king Jerry Pate, Masters champion Ray Floyd and Miller—are here, either.

So it was up to Altgelt and Armstrong to pick up the slack. Altgelt, playing in only his 15th tour event, shot 32-32 while Armstrong, who has won $54,089 this year, carded 35-29.

"I was talking to my sponsor on the first tee," Armstrong offered. "I told him I've accomplished everything I set out to do this year but win a tournament and didn't feel very motivated. He told me I should get motivated because of the $27,000 first prize here."

Picasso Philosopher Recovered

San Francisco FBI agent in charge, Charles Bates, displays an $80,000 Picasso ink drawing that was stolen from a private home in Toledo, Ohio. The FBI said they found the "Seated Male Figure" when they arrested David R. Kriger in an apartment. The drawing is one of the "Philosopher" series done by Picasso in 1933.

Congress Pushing To Adjournment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 94th Congress early today drove toward adjournment, hopefully by tonight, despite a lateblooming Senate filibuster which appeared certain to kill any revisions in clean air standards.

In marathon sessions Thursday, the Senate and House rushed through major and minor bills on an assembly line basis, trying to clear the way for a weekend getaway. Tempers flared as pet projects were shunted aside.

The Senate filibuster—one of many threatened in the final two weeks—opened late Thursday night when Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, chief sponsor of a measure to change the clean air standards, called up the compromise bill.

Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, told the Senate "so there's no doubt, I will guarantee you that we will talk all night... we will be here as long as necessary to kill this bill."

Muskie said he would not "allow two years of work to go down the drain," and told opponents "I am prepared to go tonight, tomorrow and tomorrow night."

But with a weary Congress eager to adjourn, it appeared likely that the clean air revisions will be sacrificed.

In a long, hectic, sometimes tense day Thursday Congress gave final approval to numerous bills. Among the major ones were:

—A $25.6 billion extension of the revenue sharing measure which will provide aid to states and local communities over nearly four years.

—The first comprehensive revision of the nation's copyright laws since the first was enacted in 1909.

—A $2.3 billion authorization to combat crime on the state and local level. The bill also included a 10-year limit on the term of FBI directors.

—A bill which mandates the first minimum standards for disposal of hazardous solid waste materials that could

Carte Blanche Billing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Carte Blanche has agreed to alter its billing practices in a case stemming from $1,854 in charges against a Queens man resulting from unauthorized use by another person of his credit card, according to state Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz.

The attorney general said Thursday Eugene Donelan applied for a Carte Blanche card but later notified the firm he had not received it.

According to Lefkowitz, when $1,854 in charges were piled up by an unknown third person using Donelan's card, he was billed for the amount.

Although Donelan submitted, at the request of Carte Blanche, affidavits of forgery by the third person, he was still billed for the total and after he protested again, the matter was turned over to a collection agency, Lefkowitz said.

In an assurance of discontinuance, Carte Blanche agreed to cease billing a person who has notified it of non-receipt, to stop forwarding dunning letters to such a person and to stop turning such matters over to a collection agency, the attorney general said.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

won't mix; you could lose both at once. In your rush for immediate results, don't get careless with mechanical equipment.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If you let go of the past, you'll be ahead of the crowd. Much work is needed to sort out the many people who come to you today. Meditation helps.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Avoid anything that smacks of secrecy or indiscreet behavior. Get outdoors if possible. Take along whatever you need to pursue your current hobby.

SATURDAY, OCT. 2
Your Birthday Today: Personal progress is so swift and diverse this year you have more specialties to master at once than is convenient. Material success takes most of your time and attention. Relationships vary, with many moments of intense experience. You find yourself heavily committed. Today's natives are good managers and are strongly motivated. Those born this year are "naturals" in business, testing new techniques and bringing new items into existence.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Verify appointments and information, so time isn't lost on unnecessary trips. Instead of buying into friends' schemes, organize your own enterprise.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A simple proposal quietly presented to the right people attracts backing. Associates and relatives are touchy. Don't overreact to their teasing.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Too much is going on for you to handle alone. Choose what you want to keep track of, let others handle the rest. Youngsters complicate matters.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): It's a topsy-turvy day. Progress is uneven; travel runs in circles. Expenses are also unusual. With humor you enjoy it all.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't rush into thoughtless action—too much depends on every move. Put together a winning team, and rally support for your projects. Skip shoptalk.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Continue constructive efforts despite unsolicited advice and unsettled conditions. Try to overlook people's peculiarities. Enjoy your hobby.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Watch your budget; you'll have more and better uses for your money later. Make sure you aren't neglecting someone who needs your care.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Prepare to coax family members out of contrary moods. If you succeed, they may volunteer to help do household chores or search for your misplaced objects.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Time spent dealing with people face to face is more valuable than usual. Your salesmanship is at a high level; be selective about what you sell.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friends and finances still INTERFERENCE?: (Q.) I have a friend, if that's what you want to call her. She has a brother who likes me, and I like him too.

I have gone out with him. But she told him not to go out with me anymore because I was a two-timer (I am NOT!). She reads the letters that I write to him.

At first, he didn't listen to her, but now I think that she is pulling him away from me. I would really like to get to know him better, but his sister is sticking her nose in where it doesn't belong. I hope you can help me. She is ruining things for me. — Furious in New York.

(A.) If this boy genuinely cares for you, he will not let interference from his sister keep him away from you.

I have to believe there is something else, something you don't tell me. Maybe you are being too aggressive. Your letter sounds quite combative, as if you were ready to fight someone. Maybe you simply aren't the right girl for him.

Ask yourself honestly: Is it his sister's fault, or is it something else?

A LONG TIME: (Q.) For a year, things went well with Randy and me. Then he told me that he was seeing another girl. I cried and cried. He broke up with her two weeks later, but he did not come back to me.

I saw him again after about three months, but he hardly wanted to talk to me. That was about two months ago and I haven't talked to him since then.

Do you think I should try one more time? I really need and love Randy, and if I don't get him back, who knows what I'll do? He isn't going with anyone else. — 16 in Pennsylvania.

(A.) It has been almost six months since Randy stopped seeing you. That is a long time — enough time for him to sort out his feelings and to know whether he made a mistake.

Write him a note. Tell him that you still care for him, and ask him to call you if he might be interested in being friends again.

If he doesn't call, you will go right on living, and you will find new directions for your life.

(Have a problem? Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received, Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

South ruffed the second spade, drew two rounds of trumps, cashed the ace of diamonds and led a diamond toward dummy.

When West produced the ten of diamonds, South had to guess. He finally finessed with dummy's jack, losing to the queen. East promptly drew trumps and cashed the spades, collecting 1100 points.

Playing the king of diamonds would be the wrong guess if East started with only one diamond, but South would then save at least one trick.

NO REASON TO GUESS
In this case, however, South has no reason to guess. After drawing two rounds of trumps, South should lead a club to dummy's ace and return to his hand with the ace of diamonds to lead out the king and queen of clubs.

East's bid and the early play show that East started with five spades. He is known to have started with four trumps. If East can follow to three clubs, it will be clear that he had only one diamond.

As it happens, East would follow to only two clubs. This would locate a second diamond in the East hand. No need for guesswork.

Morgenthau Mum on Any Lefkowitz Wrongdoing

NEW YORK (UPI) — An assistant state attorney general, two former assistant attorneys general and the personal secretary of Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz have been indicted on bribery and perjury charges.

According to testimony before a grand jury, Lefkowitz was present at a meeting where a questionable payment was discussed. The attorney general said in a statement he appeared before the grand jury empaneled by Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau.

Lefkowitz said he waived immunity from prosecution and cooperated "fully" with government lawyers, making all his office's records available to them.

Morgenthau told a news conference at his offices the grand jury probe was continuing but declined comment on whether Lefkowitz was suspected of any wrongdoing.

The indictments, disclosed Thursday, were believed to be the first involving Lefkowitz' office since he became attorney general in 1957.

Indicted were:

— Former Assistant Attorney General Martin Geruso Jr., 44, of Amsterdam, accused of receiving more than $21,000 in bribes between February 1973 and December 1975 from an unnamed contractor working on the South Mall in Albany. Geruso's duties included analyzing the equitable adjustment claims for damages claimed by the contractors on the Mall project and the extent of the liability.

— Assistant Attorney General Joseph Hopkins of Schenectady, charged with accepting a $1,500 bribe from a Syracuse accountant in the form of a campaign contribution to the Republican State Committee in Manhattan in 1971. He was also charged with perjury for testimony concerning his 1969 income tax form.

— Assistant Attorney General Lawrence De Lucia of Clifton Park, and Vera Bocco, 65, of Albany, personal secretary to Lefkowitz at his Albany office, both accused of perjury.

In disclosing the indictment, Morgenthau also revealed he had sent a letter to Sol Greenberg, his counterpart in Albany, saying that during the six-month investigation, "evidence has been developed in connection with the possible commission of crimes in Albany County by three public officials."

Hopkins, the statewide chief of the Bureau of Claims and Litigation, was charged with two counts of soliciting and receiving the $1,500 bribe from Bernard Landers, a Syracuse accountant.

Hopkins testified a meeting was held at the World Trade Center in Manhattan in September 1974 in which the 1969 payment to him from Landers was discussed. Lefkowitz and other officials of his office were present, Hopkins said.

The grand jury, the indictment said, "heard testimony that the Attorney General's Office conducted no investigation of these allegations of illegal payments and that the allegations were not referred to any law enforcement authority."

Mrs. Bocco was accused of lying to the grand jurors when she testified in April and July that she told no one about a secret file she kept on Landers and his relationship with the attorney general's office.

De Lucia, an assistant attorney general for 16 years, was accused of lying when he testified before the grand jury last May that Landers had never told him he had given $1,500 to Hopkins, his immediate superior, and $3,500 to Geruso.

Dignity Death Now Law

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. Thursday night signed into law the first-in-the-nation legislation to give patients the right to "die with dignity" rather than live with the aid of mechanical life-sustaining equipment.

In the closing minutes of the midnight deadline, Brown approved the measure introduced during the national debate over prolonging the life of Karen Ann Quinlan, the New Jersey girl, who was kept on a respirator for 13 months after going into a deep coma.

Opponents, including pro-life groups, said the measure was a "step on the road to euthanasia," while the author, Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, said the bill would allow patients the right to "die with dignity."

Specifically, the law, supported by the influential 25,000-member California Medical Association, will allow adults to sign a "living will" to instruct physicians to withhold life-sustaining equipment, such as respirators and artificial kidneys.

The law, however, requires that physicians may disconnect the equipment only if the patient faces "imminent death, whether such procedures are utilized."

Supporters said under the new law the mechanical respirator that helped keep Miss Quinlan breathing for 13 months could not have been withdrawn because her death was not considered "imminent by her doctors."

Brown, who made his decision shortly before the bill would have automatically become law without his signature, had consulted during the week with bureaucrats, religious leaders and philosophers.
